ROOSEVELT PLANS CABINET CHANGES.

Hay and Taft Certain to Remain, but Other Places as Yet in Considerable Doubt.

CORTELYOU MAY NOT STAY

Rumors That He Is to Accept a Place with a Great Corporation Are Numerous at the Capital.

[BY RAYMOND.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Between now and March 4 President Roosevelt undoubtedly will recast his cabinet to a considerable extent so that he will enter upon his new administration with more or less new blood in his cabinet. Rumors are likely to appear from time to time which as a matter of course cannot be authenticated until after the changes are actually made.

All the members of the cabinet are expected to stay until March 4. All of them were appointed to serve until that time and have agreed to do so. It is customary for cabinet officers to tender their resignations at the close of an administration, whether the president who appointed them is reelected or not. There is nothing to prevent a chief executive from asking the members of his cabinet to serve with him for his new term, and this generally is done in particular cases before inauguration.

Hay's Retention Necessary.

When President Roosevelt asked Secretary Hay to serve with him after March 4 he merely followed out a precedent which has been well established. The secretary of state is so completely at the head of any administration that he naturally is expected to continue if it is convenient to do so. Lincoln reappointed Seward after four years' service as secretary of state, and Grant reappointed Hamilton Fish.

In this administration the question of its foreign policy has been one which most deeply concerned the prosperity of the people, and the secretary of state has had extraordinary burdens to bear and momentous questions to solve. The Philippine policy, the open door in China, the Panama canal, the preservation of neutrality between Russia and Japan, the development of The Hague tribunal as a means of settling international disputes, and more particularly the delicate issues growing out of Russia's extraordinary conduct on the high seas are all still open questions which make the continuance of Secretary Hay in office especially desirable.

It was for this reason, and because the retention of the sagacious secretary of state would be considered by the people as a guarantee of a continuance of a safe foreign policy that President Roosevelt first of all asked him to remain in the cabinet.

Taft Is to Remain.

Other members of the present cabinet will be asked to stay from time to time, but in their cases there is not the same pressing reason for their continuance in office. In most other departments the work is largely of an administrative character and calls for the creation of little in the way of a governmental policy except so far as the war department is concerned.

Secretary Taft will be expected to formulate a government for the Panama canal strip, outline the progress of the actual work upon the canal, provide for the fair treatment of the people of the isthmian republic as regards customs duties and police regulations.

He has similar burdens in regard to the Philippines, and these two questions are considered to be so important from an administration standpoint that Secretary Taft's retention in office practically has been decided upon. No semi-official announcement has been made, but it is well understood the secretary of war is to remain where he is for some time to come.

He will make a personal trip to the isthmus, partially to pacify the people there and relieve them of any fear they may have as to the ultimate intentions of the United States. More especially his trip is to equip the secretary of war for the work of supervising the control of the United States over the Panama strip. When he returns he will have a personal acquainfance with the problems to be solved on the isthmus, as he now has to a greater degree with the issues to be worked out in the Philippines.

Secretary Taft is expected to be the expert of the administration with regard to its colonial policy, and the secretary of war with the secretary of state will be retained beyond all question merely as a matter of wise administrative policy regardless of his personal relations with the president.

Cortelyou May Not Stay.

As to the other members of the cabinet there is much more uncertainty. Chairman Cortelyou will come back unless in the meantime he is attracted away permanently by some of the great corporation managers who have been quick to recognize his extraordinary capacity. The former secretary of the department of commerce is a young man and decidedly a poor one. He worked his way into a clerkship in the postoffice department, from which he was promoted to the White house, and thereafter became secretary to the president. His salary as secretary of commerce is a much larger income than he has ever had, and yet he devoted to the work of organizing the new department an energy and a capacity which would have been highly paid for by any firm or corporation. He still has no money, and the expenses of a cabinet officer are far in excess of his salary, no matter how rigid may be the economy practiced.

For this reason there is a feeling here that Mr. Cortelyou may be tempted away into private life. It happen to know there are a number of well paid places now at his disposal, and it is quite likely the chairman of the national committee may recognize that it is his duty to his family to accept some one of these tempting offers.

Might Take Shaw's Place.

Unless sidetracked in this way, Mr. Cortelyou will come back to the cabinet, but not in all probability to his old place. There have been stories afloat here for two or three days that Mr. Cortelyou would become secretary of the treasury.

I know that such an appointment has been privately discussed in the highest and most influential official circles.

Strong eastern men have been clamoring for some time for an eastern secretary of the treasury. They say the time is coming within a few months or years, when it will be necessary for the government to support the "street" by a judicious manipulation of

STORM GRIPS EAST; NEW YORK CUT OFF

Wires Are Prostrated Over a Wide Extent of Country as Result of a Terrific Gale.

Chicago was cut off from communication with New York, Washington, and other eastern cities for several hours last night as a result of a heavy gale and snowstorm which prostrated wires. The storm center seemed to take in the Atlantic coast from New England to Virginia. There were no wires east of Utica, N. Y.

The only eastern cable connection Chicago had was by way of Montreal and Cape Breton. At Pittsburg the Western Union fixed up a 2,000 mile wire circuit to Washington. It held for a time and then went to pieces again. It was one of the worst wire wrecks in the history of telegraphy.

HURRICANE SWEEPS NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A hurricane, with a 76 mile an hour wind, accompanied by rain and snow, swept the Atlantic coast tonight and crippled wire service out of this city more effectually than at any time since the blizzard of 1888.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have no direct communcation with cities farther south than Baltimore, and all western points are cut off. All news to the west is being sent by cable to Newfoundland, then across Canada and into the United States.

In this city the full force of the gale was felt in the harbor. Several boats dragged their anchors. Off the Massachusetts coast a schooner was wrecked and its crew of ten supposed to have perished. Several other storm fatalities are reported from various points.

With Speed of Cyclone.

Starting from Florida last night, the storm of wind and rain came up the coast at almost cyclonic speed. Early this morning it was central off Cape Hatteras, although its evergathering force was felt far to the northward.

Rain began falling in New York at 5 a. m. and early in the morning changed to a wet snow. The wind, which had been blowing moderately, veered to the southeast and shortly assumed hurricane proportions. At 6 o'clock the local weather bureau noted a velocity of forty-two miles an hour, which increased to forty-eight miles at 8:30 o'clock. That speed kept up for several hours.

Velocity of Seventy-six Miles.

At 10 o'clock the storm center was at Block Island, where the barometer showed a pressure of 28.62 inches, with the wind blowing seventy-six miles an hour. At Nantucket the barometer was a trifle higher and the wind sixty miles.

Shortly after noon the telegraph companies began to feel the effects of the storm. As wire after wire went down and city after city was lost, the repair gangs were notified, but owing to the day and heavy storm it was long after dark before the full force could be mustered.

Wreck of Poles Along Erie.

Late in the afternoon it was reported that over one hundred poles along the Erie railroad had gone down, completely putting the New York-Buffalo-Chicago wires by that route out of service. Recourse for a short time was had to wires via Albany and Syracuse, but a few hours afterward the pressure of the ice on the wires carried them, poles and all, to the ground outside of Poughkeepsie, thereby effectively closing the service.

The Western Union was able to keep open the way to Baltimore, Philadelphia, and most places in New Jersey, but business for other points, save New England, was only accepted subject to delay.

Special Trains to Make Repairs.

The telegraph officials are unable to state the damage until they can communicate with the territories affected. Every effort is being made to make repairs so that a few wires may be opened up to the south and west by the time business opens tomorrow. Special trains were engaged on most of the roads running out of Jersey City and Hoboken and dispatched late this evening laden with wire repairing gangs. Owing to the completeness of the tieup the men do not expect much progress on repairs until daylight enables them to examine thoroughly the extent of the damage.

Many Boats Ashore.

Tonight the ferryboat Port Norris, running between College Point and Ninety-fifth street, Manhattan, went ashore on a rocky ledge in Bowery bay. There were ten passengers and the crew aboard. Owing to the heavy sea it was impossible to send wrecking boats, but a police boat has gone to the rescue.

Late in the evening a freight barge, apparently unloaded, was blown ashore during the height of the gale in Sandy Hook bay, off the old dynamite battery. The vessel lies in a bad position, with every sea sweeping the decks. The life savers are standing by, but are unable to board the wreck. The fate of the crew is unknown.

Battleships Have Two Anchors Out.

Owing to the high seas in the upper harbor the ferryboats to Staten island were compelled to tie up.

The battleships Maine and Missouri, which are lying in the roadsted off Tompkinsville, are riding well, but have full steam up and double anchors out.

At Bellevue hospital a tent occupied by eighteen tuberculosis patients was lifted by the wind and the suffering people were exposed to the elements. They were removed to the hospital as soon as possible, although most of them were drenched to the skin.

Crew May Be Lost.

Wood's Hole, Mass., Nov. 13.—The two masted schooner Earcularius, Capt. Nason of Rockland, Me., went ashore about three-quarters of a mile west of Tarpaulin cove, on the island of Naushen, off the Massachusetts coast.

At sunset the seas were breaking over the craft, masthead high. No trace of the crew

"CHEER UP, GIRLS! HERE I AM AGAIN."

HARRY THAW ON HIS KNEES.

Pittsburg Youth Agrees to Give Up the Artist's Model.

WILL SHE GET THE $250,000?

Prefers His Own Income of $77,500 to the Charms of the Girl.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Harry Thaw, son of the millionaire Pittsburg family, who married or did not marry Evelyn Nesbit, the artist model and chorus girl in Paris, has at last consented to give her up.

Up to the time his family received the news of his escapade in Paris Harry Thaw had an income of $77,500 per year. This his family threatened to cut off. The young man has decided that even Evelyn Nesbit cannot compensate him for the loss of $6,458.33⅓ per month.

A messenger who arrived from the east within the last forty-eight hours from young Thaw is empowered to make terms of peace with the family. The family is willing to accept the young man's profession of repentance at face value and has decided, it is said, to restore his income of $77,500 per year.

How Much Does Evelyn Get?

Evelyn Nesbit is yet to be reckoned with. It seems to be understood that the figure she will demand for releasing Harry Thaw will be fully as handsome as her own. Some time ago she allowed a rumor to drift into Pittsburg that for $250,000 she would go far from the Thaws. This is the message which called down on Harry Thaw the last bunch of family wrath and which brought things to a head.

Harry Thaw hasn't $250,000. He has a yearly income, but that is usually spent before he gets it, and the prospect of the family digging for that sum caused all the trouble.

Says $250,000 Is Too Much.

In the message of peace sent by Harry he is quoted as saying $250,000 is by far too much, even for Evelyn. He is willing to go a certain distance to become disentangled, but he won't give that price. He has told the family that he is sad and sorry, and if the people at home will lend a helping hand and get him out of this scrape he will not do anything like it again.

A messenger will be sent to New York after a family conference, but there will be nothing like $250,000 for Evelyn, whether she be Mrs. Harry K. Thaw or plain Miss Nesbit. Harry is to be helped, however.

Wants Discount for Cash.

Mrs. Thaw spent a million to keep him from getting married where and when she didn't want him to, and no matter what his status is with Miss Nesbit, no matter what claim she has on him, he is to be taken out of pawn on condition that he remain good, and that it don't cost $250,000. Mamma Thaw will ask a discount for cash at least.

The Thaws have become more secretive than usual since the official returns from the Paris escapade have been received. They now know whether or not the young man was married to the ex-chorus girl, Evelyn Nesbit, on that wild night in Paris, but they will not tell.

MOB IN RIO DE JANEIRO BATTLES WITH THE TROOPS.

Anti-Vaccination Riots Result in Death of Twelve, Injury to Sixty—Water and Gas Mains Cut.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 13.—The opposition to the compulsory vaccination law led to rioting today in which, it is reported, a dozen persons were killed and sixty injured.

Troops repeatedly charged the mob, barricades were erected, water and gas mains were cut, plunging the city into darkness, and street cars were burned.

The demonstration had every characteristic of revolution. The president's palace was strongly guarded till midnight. An intermittent fusillade continues.

CINCINNATI MAN CARRIED TO DEATH BY AUTOMOBILE.

Machine While Being Turned Around Backs Over Embankment—Douglas Neare Killed, Woman Hurt.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Douglas Neare of the firm of George W. Neare & Co., marine underwriters, and one of the best known business men of this city, was killed instantly tonight in an auto accident near California, O., about ten miles from here.

Neare, with John Martin, Grace Rose, and Miss Milo, were coming into the city from New Richmond, O., after dark. Neare, who was operating the car from the rear, decided they were on the wrong road. Martin and Miss Milo alighted, but Miss Rose stayed in the car while Neare attempted to turn it around. When the car was part way around it commenced to back and went over a cliff into the dry bed of a creek fifteen feet below.

Miss Rose jumped, but Neare went down skull was crushed. The woman received injuries from which she may die.

The machine seems to be a hoodoo. Some months ago Neare and several friends had a narrow escape from death when the machine ran into a curb on Central avenue in this city. A short time afterwards, while Neare and some friends were at the world's fair, the car made an unexpected movement and Joe Monfort, son of Postmaster Monfort of this city, was thrown out upon his head. He has been confined in a private sanitarium since then.

Dragged to Death by Auto.

Stockton, Cal., Nov. 13.—Miss Anna Budick of this city, aged 23, was killed in an automobile accident today. She and a male companion were sitting on the back of a three seated vehicle, their feet hanging over the rear, when her dress was caught in the chain and she was thrown off and dragged a considerable distance along the pavement.

Crusade to Start This Week.

It was announced yesterday that the Lincoln park board would begin this week to enforce the new automobile ordinance prohibiting "gongs, whistles, and offensive odors." The day has not been decided, but it was said full warning would be given by the commissioners.

The other park boards expect to adopt similar ordinances as soon as the Supreme court has ruled on their powers.

"The park boards have the right to enact any police legislation against automobiles that they see fit," said City Electrician Ellicott, "and so has the city. The parties who have applied for injunctions against number tags will find this out."

Mr. Ellicott said his department had issued 2,900 number tags and that less than 100 machines in Chicago lacked them.

FOOTBALL GAME ACCIDENT LIKELY TO PROVE FATAL.

George Curley, 1172 Tripp Avenue, Injured When a Dozen Men Jump on Him in a Scrimmage.

George Curley, 19 years old, was perhaps fatally injured in a football game yesterday afternoon at Forty-second and Wallace streets.

When taken from beneath a dozen men who had jumped on him to secure the ball, he was unconscious and had a severe cut over his right ear. The police ambulance was summoned and the injured man was removed to his home, 1172 Tripp avenue.

Curley went to the south side with a team to play a game against a stockyards eleven. The game was rough from the start, the teams being evenly matched. The play had been in progress twenty minutes when Curley was injured. The game was not continued after the accident.

FARMER IS MIRED IN A MARSH.

Nicholas White of Halls Station, Mo., Suffocates to Death in River Bottom.

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 13.—Nicholas White, a farmer of Halls Station, Mo., late Saturday night became mired in the soft marsh along the river near the terminal tracks and suffocated to death.

CROSSES THE OCEAN TO DIE

RUSH TRIP IS NECESSARY.

Capitalist Lives Only Few Hours After His Arrival.

After having won a race with death from Carlsbad, Bohemia, to Chicago, George T. Smith, capitalist, died last evening at his residence, 4717 Grand boulevard. Accompanied by his wife, he had gone to the foreign health resort, hoping to combat successfully a disease which had baffled the physicians of this country. He returned Saturday night.

Several months were spent at Carlsbad by Mr. and Mrs. Smith before his advisers warned him there was no hope of his recovery. He determined at once to risk the homeward voyage in the hope he would again see his father and his brother and sister in Chicago.

Hastens to His Home to Die.

Two weeks ago Mr. Smith left Carlsbad. Paris his strength gave out and he was obliged to stop and rest. The French physicians he consulted repeated the warning he had received and advised him to embark for the United States as soon as possible. Hastening forward, he reached the British seaport a few hours before the sailing of the Oceanic.

The sea voyage left Mr. Smith still more weakened, and a further stop for recuperation was found necessary in New York. He telegraphed his father that he was on the way and took a stateroom in a sleeper on the Lake Shore railroad. His brother, Fred W. Smith, met him at the station.

Mr. Smith appeared to improve as soon as he was made comfortable in his own residence. His immediate relatives called and he greeted the servants who had been employed by him for many years. Yesterday morning his condition changed for the worse. Bright's disease, with complications, caused death.

Long Resident in Chicago.

Born in Providence, R. I., in 1849, Mr. Smith came to Chicago when a boy with his father, Thomas T. Smith. The latter, who is 83 years old, early took up his residence in the neighborhood of Forty-seventh street and Grand boulevard. Members of the family gathered in the district, which long was called "Smithville." Mr. Smith's brother, father, and his sister, Mrs. W. S. Booth, still reside near the corner.

Mr. Smith was a large operator on the Chicago board of trade, dealing extensively in grain. He was one of the leaders in the bull campaign in wheat last January, which netted him a large amount of money. He invested extensively in Chicago corporations and was a director in the following concerns: A. Booth & Co., Calumet and Chicago Canal and Dock company, Chicago City railway company, Diamond Match company, Deiese & Shepard company, Elgin National Watch company, First National bank, and National Safe Deposit company.

Marries After Coming West.

Soon after coming west, Mr. Smith married Miss Frances Gaylord of Lockport, Ill. No children are living. Mr. Smith was a member of the Chicago, Calumet, and Washington Park clubs.

No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral, as relatives from the east are to attend.

COSTLY FUNERAL, THEN PRISON.

Georgia Man Convicted of Obtaining Goods Under False Pretense in Burial of Wife.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Because he gave his wife a costly funeral for which he did not pay G. P. Wright has been given a sentence of twelve months in the penitentiary. The undertakers had Wright indicted for obtaining goods under false pretenses and his conviction and sentence followed.

DEMOCRACY DEAD; REMOVE THE BODY

Tom Watson Says It Cannot Be Galvanized Into Life and Proposes to Found New Party.

JEFFERSON THE MODEL.

Tells Why Bryan's Plans Will Be Futile and Invites Everybody to Get Into Bandwagon.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—"Since 1892 the democratic party has almost entirely boxed the compass in political profession of faith.

"It has been for pretty much everything until this year, when it stood for everything or nothing, according to the interpretation which the voter chose to put upon its ambiguous platform."

In these biting sentences Thomas E. Watson, candidate for president on the populist ticket at the late election, pays his respects to the democratic party in a statement given out tonight on the result of the battle of the ballots last Tuesday and calls for a reorganization of the people.

Causes of Republican Success.

Mr. Watson says one reason for the election of President Roosevelt is the latter's great popularity, but that another reason was the unpopularity of Grover Cleveland's second administration. He declares that the last election was the first opportunity the people have had to express their opinion of that administration and that the result shows what they thought of it.

Bryan's Hands Tied.

W. J. Bryan also comes in for attention by Mr. Watson. He declares that the Nebraska leader, by heartily indorsing the Parker ticket, has tied his hands for the next four years, so far as new reforms are concerned, because the creed adopted at St. Louis last July must stand for the next four years.

Mr. Watson proposes as a remedy for the existing state of affairs to begin now to reorganize the people along the lines of Jeffersonian democracy. In that way he hopes to be successful in the campaign of 1908.

Text of the Statement.

"It should be borne in mind that at the time the Springfield convention tendered me the presidential nomination, the people's party had had no real existence as a factor in national politics for eight years. In the presidential election of 1900 it gave to its nominee only 5,000 votes. To that extent had the fusion of 1896 swallowed up a movement which in 1894 counted nearly two million of votes and about 1,500 active newspapers. Therefore, we had to build from the ground up in 1904. We had almost nothing to start with in the way of party organization, campaign funds, and newspaper support; we had only three months in which to work.

What Has Been Accomplished.

"These things being first considered some fair idea of what was accomplished can be had only when the official returns are known. Up to this time no official statement has been made of the vote, and I can only guess what it was from information conveyed to me by friends in various parts of the country.

"These sources, of course, are not reliable. Basing an estimate upon them, however, my opinion is that I received something like half a million votes scattered through so many states, north and south, east and west, as to indicate that the sentiment which gives its moral support to the people's party is national and not sectional.

"I have found everywhere that the current was strong and deep in favor of Jeffersonian democracy. I believe today that if all those who believe in that theory of government could be united in harmonious political action, we could sweep the country.

Roosevelt's Popularity Great.

"Mr. Roosevelt's overwhelming majority was not so much due to the fact that our people believe in class legislation and the reign of special privilege. It was not by any means an indorsement of corporation tyranny, the greed of the trusts, or the methods of combined capital.

"Mr. Roosevelt's majority over Mr. Parker was due mainly to two things. One was the immense personal popularity of Mr. Roosevelt himself, and the other was the immense unpopularity of Mr. Cleveland's second administration. Unfortunately for Mr. Parker, he became so completely identified with the marauders who plundered the government during Mr. Cleveland's second administration that he had to bear all the odium which they had incurred.

First Chance for Revenge.

"The people have never had a chance to show just what they thought of that second administration. Mr. Bryan's two campaigns did not give them the opportunity. It was only when the old Cleveland combination secured the defeat of Bryan and Hearst and dictated the nomination of Mr. Parker that the masses got the opportunity to vent upon a national candidate the intense hatred which they had been nursing for years against such men as Olney, and Belmont, and Carlisle, and Cleveland himself.

"They knew that I could not be elected and they were so eager to make the best of the opportunity to safeguard the country against a repetition of that saturnalia of class legislation which marked Cleveland's second administration that they rushed to Roosevelt and gave him a majority which does not under ordinary circumstances belong to the republican party.

"In other words, the personality of Mr. Roosevelt and the unpopularity of Parker's environment carried into the republican columns vast multitudes of men who under ordinary circumstances would not be found there.

Plans for Reorganization.

"My own plans for the future embrace a complete organization of the people along the lines of Jeffersonian democracy, the reestablishment of reform papers, and a systematic propaganda of Jeffersonian principles, in order that in 1908 there shall be a party of genuine opposition to the republican party and its present policies.

"If political history teaches anything it is that old parties never accomplish any reform unless they are irresistibly driven to it by pressure from without. I hope at least to be of some use to my country in aiding those who will apply that pressure. It is immaterial to me who does the work which the reformers want done, so that the work itself is done.

"I have no faith whatever that reforms will be accomplished by the democratic party.

It is discredited in the eyes of the people by a series of crushing defeats, but it has been so vacillating in its course, it has changed its principles so often, has run from one extreme to another so recently, had such a magnificent opportunity in 1892 to work out the reforms to which it stood pledged and made such wretched use of that opportunity, that it cannot inspire the confidence which leads to success.

"Since 1892 the democratic party has almost entirely boxed the compass in political profession of faith. It has been for pretty much everything until this year, when it stood for everything or nothing, according to the interpretation which the voter chose to put upon its ambiguous platform.

Bryan Not the Only Pebble.

"Mr. Bryan, while a great democrat, is not the democratic party. There are other distinguished democrats who are yet to be heard from and they may not indorse his populist platform. There is John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, there is Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, there is Senator Ben Tillman of South Carolina, there is Senator oMrgan of Alabama, there is Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia. In fact, there are quite a number of distinguished democrats who may claim the right to put in a word before the next national democratic platform is fixed.

"They may not be willing to take, for instance, Mr. Bryan's forty-seven different systems of government railroads; they may not be in favor of some other planks in his platform. Be that as it may, Mr. Bryan has no more right at the present to say what the democratic platform shall be in 1908 than any other distinguished democrat.

Creed Must Stand Four Years.

"For the next four years the democratic creed must remain what the St. Louis convention of 1904 made it, and the machinery of the party must remain in the hands of the men who now hold it. The air still rings with the eloquence with which Mr. Bryan indorsed the candidate of the St. Louis convention, spoke of him as the Moses of democracy, spoke of Parker's ideals as his own ideals, and proclaimed the 'sincerity' with which he was advocating both the platform and the nominee of 1904.

Bryan Bound Hand and Foot.

"Mr. Bryan himself will remain for four years as much bound by the action of the St. Louis convention as he was when he made his whirlwind trip through Indiana. If the action at the convention bound him then, it binds him now. The election did not release him. He can only be released by another national convention, and that national convention will not meet till 1908. Therefore, when Mr. Bryan cuts loose from a platform which he so recently asked the people to indorse in behalf of Judge Parker, he takes a position which is that of Bryan, the individual, and which cannot bind any other democrats whatsoever. For four years the democratic party has got to stand by the action of the St. Louis convention whether they wish to do so or not. What they did there is official and binding. Mr. Bryan himself gave it his sanction.

Will Not Indorse Populism.

"Again, Mr. Bryan has no substantial reason for believing that he can ever get the national democratic party to adopt the populist program which he has just formulated. The democratic party never did do it and the presumption is that it never will.

"The plutocratic element has just as much power within the party now as it had when the St. Louis convention met. Indeed, it has more. It has all the machinery now which the Bryan men then had; it has the same control over the newspapers which it then had; therefore, it is as certain as anything can be that they will be able to again defeat Mr. Bryan in the national convention when he comes before it with his populist platform.

Knives Not Sheathed.

"Suppose, however, that he should be victorious over them in the national convention, can they not knife him just as successfully as they did in 1896? Is it not absolutely certain that they are just as much joined to their idols now as they were then? Will they not be as desperate and as unscrupulous in knifing their own ticket as they were in 1896? Every argument based upon human nature says that they will. Then, even if Mr. Bryan should win the nomination of his populist platform in 1908, the plutocratic element in his own party will bar his progress and compass his defeat just as they did before.

Bryan Barred from Bolting.

"Again, suppose that the plutocratic element should triumph over Mr. Bryan in 1908 as they did in 1904, then what? Mr. Bryan will have to submit just as he did submit in 1904—after having declared publicly and positively that he would never support a gold standard nominee of the democratic party. Mr. Bryan could not bolt in 1908. The time to have done that was in 1904. That opportunity will not return. He himself has set the example of submitting to what was wrong, because, although it was wrong, it was regular.

"In short, the democratic party has this hopeless situation. The Bryanites cannot drive out the plutocratic element; the plutocratic element cannot drive out Mr. Bryan. They exhaust their strength with internal struggles, leaving the party where its enemies can always defeat it at the polls. There is this further weakness in the program of Mr. Bryan. The plutocratic element has shown that it can safely defy him and combat him, although he is the nominee, whereas he submits to them when they put up a plutocratic nominee.

"From a party so hopelessly divided it is the rankest folly, in my judgment, to expect any reform. From year to year it is a dreary go round and round of one faction fighting another faction, each of which alternately whips the other and neither of which ever whips the enemy.

Road to Success.

"I should only be too glad to cooperate in parallel lines and honorable terms with any Jeffersonian democrat like Mr. Bryan or Mr. Hearst or George Fred Williams to accomplish a purpose which is common to us all, but I believe that the best way to assure the final success of the reform movement is for us to build up a party of Jeffersonian democracy on solid foundations where unity of sentiment goes hand in hand with unity of purpose, and, where, therefore, some hope of accomplishing that which we wish to accomplish can be reasonably entertained.

"If the people's party had no other mission than to relax the grasp which the great railway corporations have upon the commercial throat of the southern states—a grasp which is maintained by the alliance between democratic bosses and Wall street financial kings—then it would have sufficient mission to warrant its continued existence. My own state of Georgia is as completely under the thumb of Morgan and Belmont, one of whom controls the Southern Railway combine, the other of whom controls the Louisville and Nashville combine, as the state of Pennsylvania is under the control of the Pennsylvania railroad or the state of Wisconsin is under the control of those corporations, which La Follette has won national fame in combating.

Situation Is Appalling.

"The situation is simply appalling, and would not be believed by anybody who was not conversant with the facts. I expect to return home and open a campaign on the lines of Jeffersonian democracy to take our state government out of the control of Morgan and Belmont, and to put it in the control of the Georgia people, where it belongs. In nearly every southern state there is a similar contest to be waged against corporation tyranny.

"By the time the next presidential election rolls around there is every reason to believe there will be a sufficient sentiment in favor of the reform principles which are embodied in the national platform of the people's party to win success at the polls. It all depends upon the work which is done in the years between now and then. I expect to do my share of it, that is all I can say at present.

Will Remain in Georgia.

"I will, however, repeat that I have not purchased or rented a home in New York, or anywhere else, and do not expect to do so. My home is in Thomson, Ga., in a region which my ancestors settled 150 years ago, and it is there that my home will be to the end.

"Am I discouraged? By no means. I began with nothing, worked three months, and got half a million votes. The men who followed me are men of conviction—earnest, enthusiastic, united. Parker started out with 7,000,000 votes and lost some 2,000,000 in the campaign. Those who followed him are demoralized and disheartened.

"Discouragement? The democratic camp is the place where that is to be found.

government funds. The state of New York is entitled under ordinary conditions to a cabinet officer. The argument is advanced that New York City has more dealings with the treasury department, so far as the financial policy of the government is concerned, than all the rest of the country. For this reason some powerful interests in and about New York City have begun to move for a New York secretary of the treasury.

Cortelyou in Treasury Department?

During the campaign Chairman Cortelyou has been thrown with these people, and they have come to know his industry, his intelligence, and his positive capacity for the science of government. He has not made a special study of financial matters, and would not go into the treasury department as an expert in that line, but his experience as confidential secretary to William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt has given him a grasp of the general policy of the government such as is possessed by few men.

Mr. Cortelyou was in the White house during the trying times from 1894 to 1897, when President Cleveland struggled so hard and resorted to such extraordinary devices to keep the nation on a gold standard, and thereafter he was equally at home when McKinley and Lyman J. Gage carried the country successfully through the new conditions created by the Dingley law and the war revenue act.

Opposition to Secretary Shaw.

I have also heard that some strong interests are specifically opposed to the continuance in office of Secretary Shaw. He offended the tobacco trust at one time, the Massachusetts glovers on another occasion, and some other special interests at various times by his treasury decisions. In most cases the secretary was sustained completely by the law officers of the government, but the opinion has grown up in the east that he is not disposed to be "complacent" in regard to special eastern interests, and something in the nature of a strong fight is likely to be made against his retention in the cabinet.

When the secretary of the treasury came to Washington to succeed L. J. Gage he did so with the distinct understanding that he would remain until March 4, 1905, and no longer. This understanding was of his own creation entirely. Since then the president has not asked him to stay, and the secretary of the treasury only arrived here yesterday and has not yet participated in a cabinet meeting since the election.

Secretary Shaw is generally understood to be a likely candidate for the presidency in 1908, and it is quite probable he would feel more independent out of the cabinet than in it.

Other Changes Foreshadowed.

It is supposed here that Secretary Hitchcock will not be in the new cabinet. The Missouri legislature next winter will be republican. It will have a successor to Senator Cockrell to elect and Secretary Hitchcock is expected to be a candidate. If so, he may retire from the cabinet before the fourth of March to avoid any possible embarrassment for the president.

There is a feeling that after March 4 there will be but one Iowa man in the cabinet, so that Wilson or Shaw would naturally go out. The secretary of agriculture has made an extraordinary success of his department and as he was born a Scot, of course he need not allow presidential aspirations to interfere with his individual work in any way.

When I asked a cabinet officer tonight regarding the current rumors, he said: "If Shaw retires he will do it voluntarily. If Cortelyou comes back to the cabinet he will not go to the treasury department, but more likely to the postoffice department, according to the original arrangement, when Mr. Wynne was appointed. Cortelyou started as a stenographer in the postoffice department and naturally has an ambition to reach the top in the place where he began at the bottom."

PENNSYLVANIA WOMAN BEATS OFF HER NEGRO ASSAILANT.

Farmer's Wife Has Desperate Struggle in the Barn Before Escaping from Man Who Attacked Her.

Doylestown, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. William Copeland, wife of a farmer at Plumsteadville, north of here, had a fierce struggle with a negro assailant last night. She beat the man off three times, and her clothing was torn from her in the struggle.

Mrs. Copeland was going to the barn to look after stock during her husband's absence. The negro, who was hiding in a feed box, sprang at her as she entered.

"I was only five feet from the pigeon room when he caught me," said Mrs. Copeland. "Twice I fought him off and the third time I managed to get away. He first seized me by the arm, bruised me, and tore my waist off, before I broke from his grasp. He caught me a second time and tore off my skirt. The third time he ripped nearly all the clothes off me.

"I fought him as hard as I could, and finally, by striking him in the face with a water can and a feed can, which I held in each hand, I blinded him and escaped. When I got out of the barn I shrieked for help and the negro ran."

Posses of farmers are searching the country for the man, of whom they have a complete description.

COLD AND HUNGER DRIVE FUGITIVES TO SURRENDER.

Jackson Brothers of Montgomery, W. Va., Send Messenger to Authorities and Submit to Arrest.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Driven by hunger and cold from their hiding place in an abandoned coal mine near Montgomery, W. Va., Ed and George Jackson, wanted for the shooting of Sheriff Daniel, surrendered today and are in the Charleston jail.

When the Jackson brothers decided to give up word was sent to Montgomery by a mountaineer, and, on the arrival of Squire Davis and a constable, the men submitted to arrest. Since the shooting of Sheriff Daniel on Thursday and their subsequent disappearance the men spent the time in the coal mine, and they were without food and drink.

The officials took the men around the town of Montgomery and by a round about way brought the prisoners to Charleston to avoid a riot or lynching, which would evidently have occurred had the citizens of Montgomery discovered that the Jackson brothers had been caught.

There are six prisoners implicated in the Montgomery shootings in the Charleston jail. It is not considered safe to hold the hearing of any of them at the present time.

LOSES HIS FOOTBALL WINNINGS.

Too much excitement over the victory of the Northwestern university football team on Saturday caused William O'Flaherty, proprietor of a students' restaurant in Evanston, a great deal of trouble. While he was out celebrating the game yesterday a waiter whom he left at his lunch counter walked off with the contents of the cash register and O'Flaherty's winnings on the game, all amounting to $500

WILL FILE PLEA FOR REFERENDUM

Advocates Carry It to City Hall Tomorrow — Face Value to Be Accepted.

NO ONE WILL VERIFY.

The referendum petition asking that the Chicago city tentative ordinance be submitted to the people at the spring election before it is passed by the council will be carried to the city hall tomorrow. The mayor will not be there to receive it, and nobody knows exactly what the promoters will do with it. Presumably it will be filed with the election commissioners.

When Mayor Harrison extended the time for the completing of the petition to Nov. 15 he made the statement that if the requisite number of signatures was obtained, in round numbers 100,000, there would be no traction legislation until after the people could express themselves on it in April. The promoters of the petition asserted yesterday they had the 100,000 names and many to spare, and the question now is who is to determine this point.

The mayor said before he went away that he could not verify the petition, and suggested the Municipal Voters' league or the Civic federation ought to take up the task. They, however, have taken no interest in the matter. The election commissioners have established the rule that such a verification is not in the line of their duties, that they would accept a petition on its face value.

So, from all that can be learned now, when the petition is presented it will be taken for granted on all sides that it is sufficient, and for lack of any verification the claims of its promoters will go undisputed.

Municipal Ownership Question.

In the meantime immediate municipal ownership is daily becoming a leading question in the politics of the spring election. Not only is it certain that a candidate representing this cry will be before the people but it is entirely possible that he will be the regular nominee of the democratic party. The idea of the radical element now seeking the party control is that with this plank in the platform and another one appealing to the so-called liberal element in an advocacy of personal liberty, as understood in the treatment of the saloon and similar questions, a winning campaign can be made.

Mayor Harrison's close friends will attempt to preserve the party organization as it now stands and nominate their own candidate for mayor regardless of what the immediate municipal ownership may do. They claim the immediate municipal ownership question, if removed from the academic place it has held, would not be the vote getting slogan its friends seem to think.

But in spite of this some of the Harrison democrats are getting ready to suggest a program to the mayor when he returns, which they assert would simplify the whole situation. It is that he remove the immediate municipal ownership question from politics by settling the traction situation before election. Nobody believes, however, any such action will be taken.

Must Unite or Be Defeated.

In the meantime, while the Harrison democrats talk loudly about their ability to control the next city convention, they are really none too confident. It has already become apparent they must seek the aid of the Hopkins-Sullivan faction if they are to defeat the radical people, and an alliance of that kind is not so easily made. They have been fighting each other too long to get together in a day. The wisest of the conservative democrats acknowledge the situation is a serious one.

UNIQUE ELECTION BET WON: SOCIALIST RICHER BY $10,000

Samuel Levin of Hartford, Conn., Mortgages Home and Wagers It All Vote of Party Would Triple That in 1900.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—As the result of a unique election bet Samuel Levin, employed as a tailor by the clothing firm of H. & D. Daniel, this city, is today several thousand dollars richer, his friends say at least $10,000, though he will give no figures himself. He bet on the socialist party.

Levin is an energetic member of the socialist party, although a thinking, conservative ne. He got the idea that the gain in its votes would triple that of the presidential election of 1900. He mortgaged his modest home at 5 East Spring street for $1,500. Every cent of this he bet, easily getting odds from 3 to 1 to 10 to 1. When his friends, even members of his own party, learned what he was doing they thought him crazy and tried to dissuade him from his course, but he was obdurate.

They no longer consider him a fit subject for the lunatic asylum since the returns came in. William Mailly, national secretary of the socialist party, has announced that incomplete returns justify an estimate of 600,000 votes cast for Debs and Hanford, the party's candidates. Levin has taken a week off from his job to collect the money.

DOWIE SCORES DEBS AND BRYAN

Calls One Revolutionist and the Other Broad and Shallow—Mrs. Dowie Improving.

Eugene V. Debs and the socialists were attacked by Dr. John Alexander Dowie in the course of an address delivered yesterday at Shiloh tabernacle.

"Debs is a revolutionist," said he. "The people who voted for him forgot that he was the leader of the revolutionary forces in this country in 1894. Cleveland has not been treated fairly by the democratic party. The party has seen fit to sneer at him, but it was Cleveland who in 1894 saved Chicago and the country from a great revolution headed by Debs.

"Bryan is a broad man. Broad man like one of these broad lakes, broad but awfully shallow. He is a man with a brass mouth, talking, talking, talking."

Overseer Jane Dowie, who has been seriously ill, was reported to be greatly improved yesterday. For the first time in three weeks she was able to sit up.

POLITICAL NOTES BY WIRE.

RIO BANK ROBBERS CAUGHT?

Four Men Arrested in St. Louis on Suspicion That They Committed the Crime.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 13.—Detectives today arrested Charles Gallagher on information received in a telegram from Sheriff C. F. Huerburg of Galesburg, Ill., which gave a description of one of the safe blowers who blew open and robbed the City bank at Rio, Ill., near Galesburg, Friday night, to which description Gallagher answers. Three companions, giving their names as Harry Morgan, Charles Sterns, and James Barrod, were taken into custody with Gallagher and held awaiting developments from Rio or Galesburg.

Indications That Kouropatkin Is Seeking Place to Deliver Heavy Blow.

KEEPS HIS SCOUTS BUSY.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Nov. 14, 10 a. m.—It is reported that the armored cruiser Gromoboi struck a rock and was severely damaged at Vladivostok. It is understood that the accident happened during a trial of the Gromoboi after repairs had been completed.

It is said that the cruiser returned to its berth in a sinking condition surrounded by a fleet of smaller craft, which kept it afloat and that it was redocked. If the report is true it assures the continuance of inactivity of the Vladivostok squadron.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

TOKIO, Nov. 13, 8 p. m.—There are indications that if Kouropatkin decides to attack Oyama before winter sets in in earnest he will strike his heaviest blow on the westward in the hope of smashing the left wing of the Japanese army near the railroad.

All the news from the front shows this. Almost daily the Russian guns shell the Japanese positions, and Cossack scouting parties are constantly testing the Japanese lines in efforts to find places here and there weak enough for infantry to work through.

The latest attempt was on last Friday when a force of 500 Russians attacked the Japanese line near Siaozaiton. It was in no sense an attack intended to bring on a general engagement, but it was much more formidable than any effort made by the Russians in many days.

TOKIO, Nov. 13, 7 p. m.—The Manchurian army headquarters, telegraphing today, says:

"In the direction of the left army the enemy attacked from Wuchentai Nov. 11 at 12:30 o'clock in the morning. They were repulsed.

"On Nov. 9, 200 infantry and 300 cavalry appeared in the direction of Siaozaiton. Our force stationed there repulsed them. The Russians retreated to Machuantzu.

"The Russian losses were sixty. Ours were six."

RUSSIAN SHELLS ARE FEWER.

GEN. KUROKI'S HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 13, via FUSAN.—The Russian forces are still encamped north of the Shakhe river. The Russian bombardment of the Japanese lines has lessened lately. From the beginning it has accomplished surprisingly little damage, although on many days a hundred big shells were fired. No Japanese were killed by the bombardment and only a few were wounded.

CHEFOO WITHOUT NEWS.

CHEFOO, Nov. 13.—No news of developments at Port Arthur has been received here today.

IS KUROKI ALIVE OR DEAD?

Dispatches from Tokio Make Frequent References Up to Oct. 17 to General Reported Killed on Oct. 4.

The rumor that Gen. Kuroki, commander of the right wing of the Japanese army was so seriously wounded by a splinter of a shell that he died at Liaoyang on Oct. 4, lacks confirmation from any source.

An examination of the war dispatches in THE TRIBUNE files for the months of September and October show:

That there had been no serious fighting of any kind for several weeks prior to Oct. 4, and that St. Petersburg dispatches indicated that the Russian scouts had been unable even to find Kuroki's army.

That Kouropatkin did not order the Russian advance southward from Mukden until Oct. 2, and that his armies did not move until Oct. 4.

That there was no fighting until the Russian advance reached Bentsiaputze on Oct. 6, and no fighting with Kuroki's army until Oct. 7.

That on Oct. 13 Associated Press reports from Tokio quoted official dispatches beginning: "Gen. Kuroki, reporting on Oct. 10, says:"

That on Oct. 14 the Associated Press dispatches from Tokio said: "For the first time since the battle began the reports from Oyama's headquarters give an inkling of what Kuroki has been doing."

That on Oct. 17 a cable message from Tokio reported that "Kuroki has buried 4,500 Russian dead."

That on Oct. 18 a New York Herald cable bulletin from St. Petersburg brought a rumor that Gen. Kuroki had been captured.

Even this morning the Associated Press brings a dispatch from Tokio commencing "Gen Kuroki's headquarters, Nov. 13, via Fusan."

During the progress of the battle of the Shakhe river Field Marshal Oyama sent lengthy reports to Tokio almost daily. In these he referred constantly to "the right army," "the left army," and "the center army." In them he did not refer to Kuroki by name, but, for that matter, neither did his reports refer to Oku or Nodzu by name.

JAPAN WILL LEVY NEW TAXES.

Import Duties to Be Increased Upon a Large Number of Articles—High on Tobacco and Beverages.

TOKIO, Nov. 13.—A draft of the war tax measure which the government plans to submit to the diet which is to meet on Nov. 28 shows a proposed increase in import duties of $7,500,000. Divided among a large number of articles, the increase on individual articles is small except in the case of tobacco, glassware, beverages, and kerosene.

Among the articles on which it is proposed to increase the duty are objects of art, ammunition, compasses, crucibles, cutlery, electrical machinery, agricultural implements, fire extinguishers, musical instruments, surgical and scientific instruments, photographic apparatus, spectacles, telephones, thermometers, confectioneries, preserves, grates, safes, stationery, inks, straw paper, sirup, felt, spirituous liquors, cartridges, bicycles, pictures, alcohol, spirits, chemicals, cotton, brass, copper, lead, steel, and gold and silver ware.

NEW ERA FOR RUSSIA.

WAVE OF LIBERALISM SWEEPING OVER THE EMPIRE.

Movement Is Neither Radical Nor Revolutionary—Is Directed by the Influence of the Successor of Von Plehve—Many Reforms Accomplished—Banishment Abolished, Exiles Allowed to Return—Greater Liberty for the Press—Hope for Finland.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 13.—Russia is facing a great internal crisis, which in the minds of intelligent Russians overshadows in importance all questions relating to foreign politics. A new, broad, and liberal movement seems not only under way but gaining momentum daily; and the best feature of it is that it is entirely divorced from any radical revolutionary propaganda.

Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, the minister of the interior, has given the movement impetus, but has done so against the most powerful influences, and behind the scenes a bitter struggle is waging for imperial support. During the coming week the first test of strength is likely to occur, the result of which may mean much for the history of Russia.

The policy of reaction, which has grown steadily since the accession of Alexander III, seemed suddenly to lose its main bulwark when Minister Plehve fell. With the advent of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky and his frank appeal for a policy of mutual confidence between government and people, a tremendous liberal rebound occurred, raising, perhaps, unjustifiably high hopes and aspirations.

An American, enjoying absolute political freedom, can hardly appreciate the full significance of what the changes that have occurred since Prince Mirsky's inauguration mean. The Russian policy as regards Finland if not reversed has been greatly ameliorated, and the Finnish national diet will meet next month. Only yesterday prominent Finlanders who were exiled under the Plehve régime received permission to return to their own country or to go abroad if they desired to do so. The oppressive activity of the police throughout the empire has been largely relaxed.

Signs of Radical Change.

Banishment by administrative order has been abolished; hundreds of political prisoners exiled to Siberia have been recalled; the Jews have received assurances of the dawning of a brighter day; the doors have been thrown open at two of the biggest trial proceedings in Russia (the Schaumann treason trial and the Jewish trial at Gomel), and the method of treating student demonstrations has been radically changed. Persuasion is being substituted for Cossack charges.

But nowhere are the changes so marked as in the matter of the press. After years of the strictest censorship, Russian papers suddenly found their voices within the last fortnight and were remarkably plain spoken in the discussion of internal affairs, and especially in connection with the forthcoming meeting of zemstvo representatives.

Liberty for the Press.

Long accounts of the Schaumann and Gomel trials have been printed, and even particulars of student demonstrations with resolutions offered at the Polytechnic institute declaring that what was wanted was not confidence but an end of the war and the immediate convocation of a national assembly. Such an unprecedented publication made the Russian public rub its eyes in amazement.

Prince Oukhtomsky, editor of the Viedomosti, said today that never within his memory had Russian newspapers been allowed such liberties.

Storm of Opposition.

In the meantime about the head of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky has raged a storm of opposition. All the reactionary elements, including the solid bureaucracy, have used all the weapons at hand to undermine him. M. Pobiedonosteff, procurator of the holy synod, has warned the emperor that if rumors attributed to court circles are credible autocracy and orthodoxy will both be in danger if the present movement is not stopped promptly.

LOST IN SWAMP FOUR DAYS, LAND CRUISER LOSES MIND.

Man Found by Hunters North of Duluth, Minn., Suffers from Cold, Hunger, and Fear of Wolves.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—James Murphy of Duluth was found in a tamarack swamp thirty miles north of here yesterday by hunters wandering about demented.

His hands and feet were badly frost bitten and he was in a pitiable condition as the result of exposure and terror over being lost four days in the timber while land cruising.

Murphy was unable to give any account of his experiences to his rescuers. He fancied wolves were after him. His feet were so sore he barely could totter along, and was without matches or gun.

The half famished man was hurried to a Duluth hospital and the physicians say that it may be necessary to amputate both feet and both arms.

JAP PRINCE IN CHICAGO.

WARRIOR, COUSIN OF EMPEROR, SEES FLOWER SHOW.

Gen. Sadanaru Fushimi Views Chrysanthemums in Lincoln Park While on Way to Washington to Give the President a Message of Good Will—Distinguished as a Soldier in the Present War—Recalled to Be Near the Ruler.

With his country engaged in a death struggle, his imperial highness Prince Sadanaru Fushimi, cousin of the Japanese emperor, yesterday afternoon viewed the chrysanthemums at Lincoln park. He spent nearly an hour at the show, overlooking none of the features, and then resumed his drive with the Japanese consul.

The prince lingered longest over the chrysanthemums named after the army and naval heroes of his land—Marshal Oyama, Admiral Togo, and others—and once, when his eyes rested on the flower named after the brilliant Gen. Kuroki, whom the morning papers had reported slain, he seemed about to speak, but passed on, members of his suite following silently.

Prince Travels Incognito.

Prince Fushimi arrived in the morning from San Francisco and went to the Auditorium Annex, where he engaged the suite that once was occupied by Sir Thomas Lipton. Except for the drive and the visit to the flower show, he did not leave his apartments until he departed in the evening for Washington. He dined with Yoshito Komma, acting Japanese consul, and received a few of the Chicago Japanese. Although the prince travels incognito, a suggestion of his rank was given by his richly accoutered aid de camp, the only member of the party in uniform.

Prince Fushimi is 46 years old, taller than the average Japanese, slender, and military appearing. The object of his trip is to deliver to President Roosevelt a message of good will from the emperor of Japan, and to visit the St. Louis exposition. He is accompanied by A. Sato, grand master of his household; Count S. Terashima, Maj. S. Mihara, his aid de camp; N. Watanabe, master of ceremonies, and Dr. K. Rokkaku, court physician.

Through Mr. Sato, Prince Fushimi said:

"I will not have an opportunity to visit Chicago longer this time, but expect to on my way to St. Louis later. I have been told that this is the most progressive city in your country. I have passed through here once, twenty years ago, on my way to Paris, where I completed my military studies. Everything in the United States is expressive of progress. I do not care to discuss the war in the east. My visit to the president is merely an expression of the good will of Japan. I expect to visit the principal cities of the east and to spend some time in St. Louis, where Japan has a large exhibit. I shall sail from San Francisco on Dec. 28."

Distinguished as a Soldier.

Prince Fushimi has been a soldier from boyhood. He distinguished himself in the war with China in 1894 as commander of the Fourth infantry brigade. In the present war he was in command of the First division of the second army, which landed in Manchuria last May. He jumped into the freezing water, breast deep, as his launch reached the shore, and, wading, was one of the first to reach the shore. In this battle he calmly ate his long delayed breakfast, while the shells were bursting over his tent. During the fighting he displayed all the qualities of an able general.

Prince Fushimi's most brilliant military success was achieved at the battle of Nanshan on May 25. He commanded the division in the center, where, for two days the fight waged. The enemy was driven back to Port Arthur at the point of the bayonet. For this achievement the prince was promoted to the rank of full general. Soon afterward he was recalled, to be near the emperor.

DYNAMITE WRECKS HOME OF VIRGINIA, MINN., MAYOR.

Mining of Executive's House Laid to Enemies He Made Because of Severity on Saloons and Gamblers.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—An explosion of dynamite, supposedly set off by political enemies, wrecked the residence of Mayor M. L. Fay of Virginia early this morning.

The fact that Mayor Fay and the members of his family occupied rooms in the front of the house perhaps saved them from death or injury, as the explosion tore away the rear of the house.

The detonation awakened hundreds of people, and the first report was that robbers were attacking one of the banks.

Mayor Fay says that he will spend thousands of dollars to detect the men who tried to blow up his home, and has summoned several private detectives to Virginia.

Mayor Fay has been strict with the liquor men and gamblers and there has been bitter complaint in many quarters because the mayor kept the lid on the town.

AIM TO DROP SCHUETTLER

CLANCY AND SHIPPY MEN SAY ERRORS WERE MADE.

Followers of Inspector and Captain Submit Figures to College Professors and Assert the Assistant Chief Was Not in the First Three on the Civil Service Examination List — Mystery Still Surrounds Persons Behind the Appeal to the Courts.

If Chicago ever gets a properly accredited assistant chief of police it will be, according to present indications, only after the universities and the courts have established the true answer to a mathematical problem.

While police circles were engaged yesterday in speculating on the identity of the persons responsible for the mandamus proceedings in Judge Windes' court, the partisans of Inspector Shippy, Capt. Clancy, and Assistant Chief Schuettler were busy with mathematical experts. Shippy's friends, with the help of a Northwestern university professor of trigonometry, reached the conclusion that the inspector, who stood first on the civil service list, really is entitled to a higher mark. Capt. Clancy's partisans submitted the problem to an instructor in calculus at the University of Chicago, who, along toward night, evolved an answer that places the stockyards captain at the top of the list.

The writ of mandamus requiring the civil service board to appear in court was made returnable for Dec. 1. On that date Attorney A. D. Gash will attempt to secure an investigation by the court of the process by which the marks were made on the examination papers and the averages made up. He declares mistakes were made in computing the averages.

Believe Irishmen Behind Move.

It developed, however, that certain officials of the United Irish societies have been active in behalf of Capt. Clancy, and it was the general belief among police officials that here was to be sought the source of the litigation. This theory was in part substantiated by the admissions of James A. Hogan, president of the United Irish societies.

"The United Irish societies is not interested as an organization," said President Hogan. "Whatever is done is the result of individual effort. I don't know who retained the attorney for the court proceedings, although several persons have talked to me about it."

Gash Still Preserves Secrecy.

Another story which gained considerable credence was to the effect that the handbook men and other gamblers put out of business by Schuettler were interested in seeing some other police official appointed assistant chief.

"The gamblers are not behind this," declared Attorney Gash. "Nor is any Irish organization. I cannot tell the name of my client, as he requested it be withheld. He is a man who believes the figures in this examination were juggled in such a way as to bring Schuettler within the first three on the list. I will put expert mathematicians on the stand to prove this. I had supposed the investigation would show Shippy's standing undisputed. Clancy may, however, be found to be entitled to first place. Schuettler will, I am confident, be put farther down the list when the figures are corrected."

Both the Shippy and Clancy partisans are interested in seeing Schuettler eliminated from the first three on the list. There their ways diverge. The Clancy faction asserts that the civil service experts gave a value of 4½ to the physical test instead of ½, as the law requires. According to their interpretation of the law they arrive at the following averages for the candidates:

Capt. W. F. Clancy	83.01
Inspector George M. Shippy	81.14
Capt. P. D. O'Brien	79.52
Capt. Herman Schuettler	74.49
Capt. Peter Kelly	73.65

HAT PIN VANQUISHES HUGGER.

Omaha Young Woman Puts Assailant to Flight by Stabbing Him in the Eye.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A stab in the eye with a hatpin in the hand of Miss Helen Pickett, an athletic young woman, put to flight a ruffian who for two weeks has terrified women in the leading residential district here. "Jack the Hugger," as he has been termed, seized Miss Pickett by the waist, and before he knew what she was doing she had used the dangerous weapon which she carried in her hair. The man ran away howling with pain.

REMOVES CHANCE TO SMOKE.

New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Prohibits Sale of Cigarets and Cigars in Its Stations.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has prohibited the selling of cigarets and cigars in its stations because the presence of tobacco tempts men to smoke there.

STEALS PURSES IN CHURCH

PICKPOCKET WORKING IN THE HOLY NAME CATHEDRAL.

Father Fitzsimmons Before Sermon Tells Congregation That Many Pocketbooks Have Been Taken from Women While on Knees at Prayer—Believes Only One Person Is Guilty and That She Comes for Theft—Wants Money Guarded.

"Keep an eye on your purse when you're praying. If you don't somebody may steal it." the Rev. M. J. Fitzsimmons of the Holy Name cathedral told his congregation yesterday morning. The warning prefaced a sermon at 10:30 o'clock mass, when the cathedral was crowded.

"There have been so many purses stolen lately while women of this parish were on their knees at prayer that it is time something was said about it," the pastor continued. "Some one—I believe there is only one such person—is coming to services here, not to pray, but to steal. It is a painful duty, but I warn you to be on your guard against that person.

Warns Against Unguarded Purses.

"It is customary, I notice, for the women of the parish to leave their pocketbooks in the seats when they kneel in prayer. This is wrong. It allows the thief to take a purse with ease.

"Hereafter I advise you when you pray to put your purse on the seat in front of you and watch it."

After the services Father Fitzsimmons said he had been supplied with the description of a woman who had acted suspiciously in church on several occasions.

Thinks Woman Is the Thief.

"One of my parishioners told me that her pocketbook was stolen in church some time ago and that she was confident this woman, who sat behind her, had taken it," he declared.

"Some of the thieving takes place on week days when only a few persons are in the church at a time and there is less chance of its being detected."

WAVES ROLL OVER SEA WALK.

New Lawn Along Lake Shore Drive Inundated as Result of the High Wind.

The heavy wind yesterday brought an unpleasant fact to the attention of the Lincoln park commissioners. The esplanade bordering the Lake Shore drive is not adequate to keep back the waters of the lake in times of storm. The shrubbery planted lawn between the roadway and the shore improvement was inundated by the wash from the heavy seas and was transformed into a miniature lake.

When the present esplanade was planned for the drive the commissioners decided to make a change from that already in along Lincoln park. In the park improvement there is first an expanse of heavy stone paved walk rising from a foot above the water's edge at its outer border to about three feet above the lake level at the inner margin. Inside this a substantial concrete wall stands, separating the esplanade from the level walk. The wall is for the purpose of restraining high seas.

It was thought by the commissioners that the restraining wall could be dispensed with when the drive was to be put in order, thus giving an unobstructed view of the lake from the roadway. The walk is at the level of the top of the paved incline, and is immediately bordered by turf and growths of shrubbery. This is the area flooded by the waves that cast their waters clear over all the new improvements.

CHICAGO PEOPLE HURT IN WRECK.

Wabash Train Jumps Track Near Merchants' Bridge in North St. Louis.

35 ON BOARD INJURED.

Eye Witnesses and Passengers Declare Engine Was Running Too Fast.

St. Louis, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Thirty-five persons, some from Chicago, were injured, two of them probably fatally, in the wreck of the Wabash limited No. 10, which left the Union station at 9:22 o'clock this morning and was derailed just as it was rounding the sharp curve leading to the Merchants' bridge in North St. Louis. The engine leaped from the rails and turned over on its back, the steam pipes bursting and scalding Engineer Hines and Fireman Llewellyn so they probably will die.

The baggage car also turned over on its side, and two chair cars were partly wrecked, but the parlor car remained upright, and the observation car and the private car of Gen. Supt. Hurley of the Santa Fé, which had been attached at the world's fair station, did not leave the rails.

The Injured.

Campbell, Joseph, Chicago; back sprained.
Devries, S. J., aged 51, lumber dealer, 9066 Green street, Chicago; knee sprained and seriously bruised.
Hines, J. P., aged 47, Decatur, Ill., engineer; head and face badly lacerated, entire body scalded; will die.
Llewellyn, David J., aged 27, 426 North Illinois street, fireman; severely scalded about head and upper part of body, may die.
Marshall, Miss M. B., aged 23, 422 North Fifty-third avenue, Chicago, stenographer for Walker & Williams, lawyers; back strained and internal injuries.
Turner, Robert, Chicago; cut on wrist and head.
Vanoedel, Mrs. Alice, Ashland avenue, Chicago; knee bruised.
Wiseman, S. A., aged 28, 304 North Park avenue, Chicago; head and shoulders hurt.

The more seriously injured were taken at once to the city hospital; the other injured were transferred to St. Luke's hospital, where their injuries were dressed. The uninjured were taken back to the Union station and transferred to another train on the Wabash line which left for Chicago at 2:30 p. m.

Train Running Too Fast?

Officials of the St. Louis Terminal association are unable to explain the wreck, except on the theory that the train was running at an unusually high rate of speed and leaped from the track by its own momentum on the sharp curve near the bridge. Passengers, who were on the train, agree that the train seemed to be running extremely fast and that telegraph poles and sign boards fairly flew by. Eye witnesses to the wreck also declare that the exhausts of the engine were working unusually rapidly.

Railway Officials Deny It.

Soon after the wreck occurred General Superintendent A. Robertson of the Terminal railway arrived at the scene and made an investigation. He stated he had been unable to determine the cause of the accident, as the track was in perfect condition, having been laid only six months ago. When asked if he thought the momentum of the train could have thrown it off at the curve, he said this was impossible, unless the train had been making phenomenally fast time.

SAFETY IN AFRICA: PERIL HERE.

W. L. Hotchkiss, Missionary, Addresses Northwestern Students on Conditions in Dark Continent.

"There is less danger of one's being injured in the depths of an African forest where wild animals abound and savages are plentiful than there is here in the United States, where railroad trains run with lightninglike rapidity.

"I lived among African tribes and animals for four years without injury, and came to civilized America only to be laid up in the hospital for six months as a result of a wreck on a fast train," said W. L. Hotchkiss, in an address to the students of Northwestern university at Fisk hall yesterday.

Mr. Hotchkiss spoke of the missionary work in Central Africa, telling of the hardships he had suffered there.

ATLANTIC OCEAN RATE WAR ENDED BY THE CUNARDERS.

Six Big Steamship Companies Agree to Cease Strife Over the Hungarian Emigration Traffic.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The rate war between the transatlantic steamship companies over the third class rates, originating with the Cunard company's invasion of Hungarian territory, is now a thing of the past, a two days' conference, at which all the leading companies were represented, having resulted in a treaty of peace.

The following official statement has been issued:

"Negotiations have been concluded subject to the Hungarian government's approval, inasmuch as the Cunard line will, with regard to their continental traffic, join the association of continental steamship companies, and all war measures will be withdrawn from today and continental rates will be restored immediately."

Being too attentive to his duties is what Policeman Thomas Smith says caused charges to be preferred against him for a hearing at the police trial board on Wednesday. He arrested David Coski, 19 Halsted street, for persistently obstructing the sidewalk with his wares. Coski preferred charges and yesterday Policeman Smith, who is an amateur photographer, went to Coski's clothing store and took a picture of the place to show that the sidewalk is obstructed.

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW

CURES INDIGESTION

I want to make it very plain to all sufferers from indigestion that nature has in my Paw-Paw provided a certain cure for this distressing ailment and all of its troublesome consequences. The native tribes of the tropical countries where the Paw-Paw grows use the fruit as a digestant and cure for all stomach ailments, but as I have compounded it and combined it with well known therapeutic agents in my Paw-Paw Tonic, it becomes a scientific specific for Dyspepsia, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. I know it will cure these troubles speedily and thoroughly. It does away with all desire for beer, wine and whiskey. Gives exhilaration without intoxication.

If the liver is sluggish and you find yourself constipated, bilious and feeling dull and heavy take a dose of my Paw-Paw Laxative Pills. I consider them the best stomach and liver pill on earth.

Every druggist will give you the names of hundreds who have been cured by Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic, Paw-Paw Pills or other Munyon remedies.

LARGEST 2 CENT MORNING CIRCULATION IN THE UNITED STATES.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1904.

HOOKER AND HALSTED STREET.

The recording angel of Halsted street still continues to count the Union Traction cars which reel and plunge overburdened along the billowy tracks with which the center of that street is adorned.

No other street has a recording angel. There is only one Hooker. He ought to be municipalized. Then the members of the city council would know just what kind of service their constituents were receiving. Then they would know just how many more cars they would be justified in ordering the street car companies to put on. Make Hooker into a city department.

According to Hooker's latest dispatch from the scene of action the Union Traction company is still engaged in the amusing practice of withdrawing exactly as many cars after the rush hours as will maintain the average number of straphangers. During the rush hours in the morning the cars run one and three-quarter minutes apart and are crowded. During the rest of the morning they run three and two-thirds minutes apart and are crowded.

By a judicious use of the barns the company is able to prevent its patrons from having the use of so many cars as to get seats.

The celestial repository to which the recording angel of Halsted street transmits his observations is the United States Circuit court. The Union Traction company is in the hands of that court. Judge Grosscup, the presiding officer of the court, has received Hooker's previous communications with dignity. He will probably receive this one in the same way.

Then Hooker will take his camp-stool and his stop-watch and do some more counting.

Is the city so impotent that a private person must find out just how bad its street car service is, and that even then it cannot exercise its indubitable police power and compel an improvement?

DESOUTHERNIZE THE SOUTH.

A country may often be benefited by struggles which array father against son and brother against brother in the same family. It is seldom that it can be benefited by a struggle which arrays section and section. A divided family may leave a solid nation. A solid section means a divided nation. As long as this nation has a solid south there will be disquiet.

The reason of the solid south is the negro. Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, says:

"I lay down these propositions as being fundamentally true:

"1. With the race question removed the southern states would divide on the ordinary political issues of the day just as they did before the civil war.

"2. The best interests of the negro would thus be conserved and the welfare of the whole country would thus be materially promoted."

What keeps the negro in politics today? White southern fear of the anti-white policy of a great many members of the republican party. Roosevelt has succeeded in making this policy more irritating and more humiliating than ever before. It is the one profound error of his administration. He has found it necessary to do what McKinley had no difficulty in avoiding. He has seen to it that, whether it be a matter of private dinners or of political appointments, the exaggerated feelings of the south shall be still further exaggerated.

What is the consequence of the present sectional spirit? The south is intellectually isolated, politically marooned, immersed in one local issue, excluded from the larger life of the nation, turned into itself and placed with its back toward the future. It can give the rest of the country no aid in the solution of the questions which will make the future what it is to be. Is a southerner a protectionist? Does he believe in expansion? Does he approve of the acquisition of the Panama strip? Does he see the need of adequate coast fortifications and of an efficient navy? Does he resent the plutocratic abduction of the democratic party? Does he know that Parker was manufactured by New York financial interests? Still he must vote the democratic ticket. He cannot trust himself to a party synonymous in his mind with pro-negro interference.

It is not humanly possible that the south is absolutely right in this matter. It has its unconscious prejudice. It has its willful selfishness. But it takes a position which ought, at any rate, to modify the position of the north when, through Clark Howell, it says:

"What, then, is meant by the elimination of the race question? I answer:

"1. The acceptance by each section of the right of the other to deal with the problem in its own way as long as the laws of the respective states and of the federal government and the provisions of the constitution are not violated.

"2. Reasonable and at least moderate recognition by whatever party may be in power of the sentiment, traditions, and sensibilities of the public opinion of the respective states in the matter of federal appointment of such officials as must be brought into contact with the public."

AUTOCRACY AND RAILROADS.

If it is profitable that there should be only six railroad systems in the west, then there will be only six railroad systems in the west. But it does not follow that the nation should be as unconcerned as it was when there were sixty.

If Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman can make more money by ceasing to compete then they will try to cease to compete. This is legitimate self-interest. But legitimate self-interest on the part of the individual may produce a situation demanding the attention of the community.

Let us admit, therefore, that railroad consolidation is required at the present time by real and not by artificial economic pressure. Let us admit that it is a matter of administrative necessity and not of stock market buccaneering. Let us admit that the gentlemen who are elbowing their way toward the formation of a railroad trust on a national scale are actuated only by normal, decent business principles of economy and dividends. Let these things, sometimes doubted, stand for the moment undoubted. It does not follow that the people of the United States are not justified in becoming restive.

When legitimate personal business enterprise acquires the proportions of national autocracy in any department of industry it becomes a fit subject for national interest and investigation. The autocrats may be angels. Certainly in this case they are no worse than the average man. Tom, Dick, and Harry would do what they are doing if Tom, Dick, and Harry were in their places. But that is not the point. Mr. Harriman's motives make no difference one way or the other. No one is justified in hating Mr. Harriman. What the nation is concerned with is the result of Mr. Harriman's work. And that result is an approach to autocracy.

The proposition now said on good authority to be in process of development in the offices of the railroad financiers of the country is this:

The Harriman, Gould, Hill, Moore, Santa Fé, Rockefeller, Vanderbilt, Pennsylvania, Erie, Morgan, and New Haven railroad systems shall establish a community of interest through interchanged ownership of securities and interchanged nomination of directors.

In the whole United States there are about 207,000 miles of railroad. The number of miles in the community of interest will be about 162,000.

Without railroads the complex industrial fabric of America would fall to pieces. A consolidated, autocratic management of railroads gives to the men who compose it the mastery of industrial action.

This is an industrial age. The mastery of industrial action is in a strong sense the mastery of the age. It makes no difference how innocent of evil intentions the men who have achieved that mastery may be. The mastery remains.

Mr. Roosevelt has intimated in his messages to congress that in such cases national attention is demanded. There must be nothing within the nation greater than the nation. This does not mean an attack on capital. It means simply that when capital gets national power the nation must see to it that its power is not abused.

The members of the next congress should begin to study railroad consolidation to the end that they may do nothing rash and foolish and yet may protect the manufacturers and traders of this country from the potential tyranny of the greatest of all possible trusts.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Following the election, as was to be expected, there was a boom on the stock exchange in New York. While prices did not advance greatly the volume of trading made Wednesday the biggest day since the boom of 1901. Two million three hundred thousand shares of stock were dealt in, and bonds to the par value of $14,000,000 were sold. It is not desirable for a speculative furore to strike the country at present, and the indications are that the most radical bulls will find it impossible to push prices much higher for the present.

Bank clearings for October indicate the substantial revival of business activity. They were 25 per cent larger than for the same month a year ago, and surpass those of any previous October. The increase in railroad traffic is another evidence of expanding trade. There is already a shortage of cars on many lines, though the hauling of the corn crop has hardly begun.

Japan has just closed a contract with an American firm for the prompt delivery of twelve locomotives of the Mogul type. One-half of the new Japanese loan of $60,000,000 is being marketed by a New York syndicate. The rate of interest is 6 per cent, and the price 90½, the loan secured by a second lien on the customs receipts.

Cotton has been stronger this week than last, but the price has not gone above 10¼ cents a pound for middling uplands in New York. The cotton mills of Fall River will be thrown open today, and if the operatives accept the reduced scale the labor situation in the country will be practically free of disturbances.

THE ELECTION IN MASSACHUSETTS.

The election in Massachusetts makes two interesting revelations; one in regard to reciprocity; the other in regard to socialism.

Mr. Douglas was elected governor by a surprising plurality because of his attitude on the question of reciprocity. Massachusetts was the only state in the country where the socialist party did not make a gain. In that state the socialist vote fell from 33,000 in 1902 to about 15,000.

Since the election Mr. Douglas is quoted as saying: "I made the fight solely on the proposition that we should have reciprocity, and that all trusts which sell their products abroad cheaper than we can buy them here should not be permitted to enjoy protection."

While Massachusetts is peculiarly interested in the question of reciprocity because of her large and varied manufacturing interests, yet it must be remembered that in times past the Old Bay state was wont to take the lead in political departures. There may be an element of prophecy in the Massachusetts election.

While Mr. Douglas did not run as a labor candidate, yet he appealed to the labor vote because of his reputation as an employer of labor in his extensive factories. He is reported to have once been a union man himself. On the other hand, his republican opponent had incurred the enmity of the labor vote by his veto of the overtime bill, a measure to prohibit night work by women and children.

By his advocacy of reciprocity Mr. Douglas won many votes from the republican party; by his position on labor he won many votes which, in the absence of any known sympathy for labor, would have gone to the socialist party.

Roosevelt and the Bible.

[From the New York Press.]

A citizen who believes in the bible and in his good wife bet heavily on Roosevelt because they told him to do so. This is the method of divination: Take an old brass key and insert the web between the leaves at the sixteenth verse of the first chapter of Ruth; bind the bible tightly as you would tie a bundle; then rest the bow of the key upon the tips of the two forefingers so that the volume will freely swing. Now repeat aloud the entire sixteenth verse, as follows:

"And Ruth says, Entreat me not to leave thee; wherever thou goest I shall go; there I shall be buried, by St. Peter, by St. Paul, by the God that made us all. If Roosevelt is going to be elected turn bible, key, and all."

You will not find the sixteenth verse as quoted here; but as altered to suit the designs of the charmers. If the answer is in the affirmative, positively, absolutely, undoubtedly so, the bible will turn so quickly that it and the key will fall from the hands. If in the negative it remains stationary. During the campaign those who tried this trick dropped the bible every time; therefore it was a sure thing for Roosevelt.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Cooks.

[From Stray Stories.]

Feeding the German emperor is no light task. Despite all that is said about the kaiser's Spartan habits there are few monarchs who keep more elaborate tables. He has no fewer than four chefs—Schliedenstucker, a German; Harding, an Englishman; an Italian and a Frenchman—so that he can have his meals for the day served in the style of whatever nation he may happen to fancy. Each of these chefs has his staff of assistants, while in addition there is an individual who may safely be described as "sausage maker to the kaiser." His majesty is fond of the huge white frankfurter sausage, and has a supply of them made fresh every day in his own kitchen. When engaged in maneuvering his army on a big field day these frankfurters and bread, washed down with lager beer, invariably form the kaiser's luncheon. In addition to all these cooks there is a special staff to prepare meals for the younger of the princes and the princess, who are not allowed to partake of the rich dishes the elder members of the family indulge in.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1904: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

TODAY, being St. Leopold's day, is celebrated in Belgium and by Belgian legations and consulates all the world over as the name's day of King Leopold. In Catholic countries it is not the anniversary of the birth but the day of the saint from whom the name is taken that is observed, and this is the reason why no attention is accorded to April 9, which is the actual birthday of the king, all the observances, official and otherwise, being reserved for St. Leopold's day on Nov. 15.

This is the only day in the year that King Leopold goes to church and attends divine service. A special service is celebrated in honor of the day at the ancient church of Ste. Gudule at Brussels, which everybody belonging to the male sex attends in full uniform. The king is received in grand ecclesiastical state by the principal prelates of the kingdom and by the clergy of the church at the main entrance of the sacred edifice and marches in procession up the central aisle under a magnificent canopy to his seat within the chancel rail. He carries in his hand a gorgeously bound mass book of pompous dimensions which he peruses with an appearance of devotion throughout the ceremony, and which on his return to the palace of Laeken is locked up once more out of sight until the recurrence of St. Leopold's day twelve months later.

Few people in this country have any idea of the suffering which royal personages have to endure in Europe from the lack of privacy inherent to their rank. An extraordinary illustration thereof was furnished the other day at Madrid on the occasion of the particularly sad death of the king of Spain's elder sister, the 22 year old princess of the Asturias, who succumbed to failure of the heart forty-eight hours after giving premature birth to an infanta.

If ever people yearn for privacy it is when gathered around the death bed of a dearly loved daughter, wife, and sister to receive her last farewell. Queen Christina, King Alfonso, the Infanta Maria Theresa, and Don Carlos of Bourbon, husband of the dying woman, were thus assembled after the princess had received absolution from the father confessor of the family, when suddenly the great folding doors of the apartment were thrown open, and, escorted by the halberdiers of the royal guard, the grand almoner of the court, followed by all the canons and dignitaries of the chapel royal, some forty in number, by all the grand dignitaries of the court, and officials of the royal household, and by all the grandees, men and women, who happened to be apprised in time of the impending ceremony, marched into the death chamber, each bearing a lighted candle. All dropped on their knees, the halberdiers as well as the others, and after administering the viaticum the grand almoner commenced to recite the prayers for the dying, to which the responses were made by the attendant clergy and by all others present. Before twenty minutes had gone by the princess had passed away.

While the scene was solemn, yet the presence of that vast crowd of people, some of them comparative strangers and barely known to the royal family, at such a moment must have added to the distress of the bereaved husband, mother, and other relatives. They would naturally have preferred that the young princess should have been left to them and to their old family chaplain and trusted spiritual adviser during those last sad moments.

But the inexorable laws of Spanish court etiquette require that it should be otherwise, and that when a member of the royal family is about to die—and the death agony is terrible to behold, though it was not so in the case of the princess of the Asturias—all the dignitaries of the court, all the guards on duty, the servants of the palace, and all the noblemen and noblewomen of grandee rank who may happen to be at the palace should have the right to put in an appearance around the royal death bed and to witness the royal demise.

It is in keeping with those other barbaric customs which exact that the corpses of Spanish royalty should be reduced to the condition of a mummy by not merely months but years of exposure to the dry atmosphere of the vaults cut in the rock on which the palace of the Escurial is built before being laid to their last rest in the tomb that forms a feature of the palace mausoleum and church; which requires the presence of all sorts of great dignitaries of state at royal births, to safeguard against any danger of supposititon, and which at Vienna, at Dresden, at Munich, etc., demand that the heart, the viscera, and the brain of the royal dead should be consigned to the care of other churches and cathedrals than those where the mutilated body is laid.

The existence of royalty is marred by many thorns, and one cannot feel astonished that they should sometimes express their eagerness to barter all the advantages of their rank for those enjoyed by even the humblest peasantry—namely: privacy and immunity from the laws of court etiquette.

The countess of Seafield, who has recently joined the Salvation army, and who has been writing to the English newspapers to refute certain statements about her husband, the widow of the tenth earl of Seafield, who died out in New Zealand, after an extraordinary career, during the course of which he figured as gold digger, pound keeper, farm laborer, and process server to a county court. It is her son who is the present earl of Seafield, and although in addition to his earldom he is Viscount Reidhaven, and Lord Ogilvy in Scotland, and Lord Strathspey in the peerage of the united kingdom, besides being chief of the great Scottish clans of Colquhoun, of Grant, and of Ogilvy, yet he does not possess a rood of land in Great Britain and makes his home with his young wife, the daughter of a New Zealand village doctor, out in the antipodes, where he was born and reared.

The reason for this condition of affairs is as follows. The fifth earl of Seafield was insane. The sixth therefore succeeded to vast accumulations of rent, and as long as he lived provided a home for his numerous sons. When he died, however, his eldest son, the seventh earl, was asked to share the accumulations with his brothers. He refused, and thereupon his brothers went to law, being defeated. So embittered was the earl against his brothers by their going to law that at his death he refrained from leaving them a single penny, bequeathing every vestige of his property to his only son, the eighth earl. When the latter died, young and unmarried, in 1884, in pursuance of his father's wishes he ignored his uncle, who was to succeed to his honors, and left the whole of the immense Seafield estates, which are exceedingly valuable, to his mother, Caroline, widowed countess of Seafield, who still owns them. I may add that the property comprises the Balmacann estate, which has been occupied for a number of years on lease by Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin of New York.

The present earl has shown a good deal of independence in his dealings with old Lady Seafield, who is exceedingly imperious, and has declined absolutely to comply with the exacting requirements which she put forward as the condition for granting him from the Seafield estates an income sufficient to maintain his peerages with a proper amount of dignity. Perhaps she likes him all the better for the strength of character which he has shown in the matter. For she has announced her intention of bequeathing to him the whole of the large Seafield estates at her death.

His own mother, the widow of the tenth earl, was a serious minded woman even before she joined the Salvation army, and far from being a woman of the humbler classes, as has been alleged in a number of the English newspapers, was a daughter of an army officer of the name of Evans, a scion of that old Irish family of which Lord Carbery is the chief. It was partly through pride and partly through religious scruples that on the death of her husband, she, although almost destitute, declined the offer made by old Caroline, countess of Seafield, to take charge of the young earl on the condition that he should break off all relations with his mother and New Zealand relatives, undertaking, however, to settle a handsome allowance on the mother. She, unlike Dearest in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," rejected this offer, being unwilling to part from her boy, and fearing that his religious faith might be imperiled if he were brought up by so worldly a woman as old Caroline, countess of Seafield.

THE PRIMAL BLESSING

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread."—The Book of Genesis, iii., 19.

This first curse on the head of man,
This first blow from the hand of fate,
Hid from him the eternal plan
Which works its purpose soon or late.
With aching back and blistered hands
Man paused, his fruitless wrath to nurse—
But now, at last he understands
The blessing hidden in the curse.

Fair highways leading up and down
Where once no foot could find a trail,
Each city rising from a town,
Each wire that brings a distant hail,
Brave ships that trace the sea roads out
And fetch us wealth of merchandise,
And walls that shield us roundabout
Show that man's punishment was wise.

Work puts behind the things that fret,
The woes that goad the weary heart,
And helps the sad ones to forget
The bitter lot and grievous smart;
Work leads from darkness into light,
It changes midnight into dawn
And thrills the sons of men with might
That sends them ever on and on.

Without the counterpoint of pain
No chord with vibrant pleasure rings;
The world and man would never gain
By lessons taught by pleasant things—
And so this curse of Eden's day
Concealed a blessing absolute:
It set man on the higher way
Above the level of the brute.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

RAFFLES,
The Amateur Cracksman.

A Comedy Drama in Four Acts.

BY

E. W. HORNING and EUGENE PRESBREY.

Presented at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, by Kyrie Bellew and His Company on Nov. 13, 1904. The Cast:

Mr. A. J. Raffles	Kyrie Bellew
Capt. Bedford	E. M. Holland
Mr. Harry Mandera, "Bunny"	Frank Connor
Lord Amersteth	Frank Roberts
Lord Crowley	William Morgan
Crawshay	Frank McCormack
Lady Melrose	Hattie Russell
Mrs. Vidal	Loreina Atwood
Lady Ethel	Olive Wyndham
Marie	Mignon Boranger
Gwendolyn Conron	Clara Blandick

A second "Sherlock Holmes" about describes "Raffles" as a play.

The audience which filled the Grand last evening to the last lawful limit sat spellbound and delighted throughout the performance which Mr. Bellew and his company gave, just as the audience used to do every night when Mr. Gillette was presenting his characterization of the famed detective at Powers'. It is the tensest kind of a detective yarn is this "Raffles," and, although you sit back in your seat during the entr'actes and think that the whole thing really is only a yarn and say to yourself "It never happened," yet the moment the curtain rises you are deep in the interest again and soon find yourself on the front edge of your chair holding your breath and having what one enthusiastic young woman was heard to describe as "an awfully good time."

"Raffles" is a melodrama just as is "Sherlock Holmes," but it is so cleverly constructed and so excellently acted that its designation on the program as a "comedy drama" seems wholly justified. You leave the theater feeling you have been watching live people—much alive, some of them—and you have a mighty big admiration in your heart for Raffles, the gentleman crook and thief.

Of course in the last analysis, or in any analysis, for that matter, this admiration for a criminal is highly reprehensible, and the seekers for "problems"—those who dissected poor, pure "Candida"—will doubtless discover much that is naughty and wicked in "Raffles." But if you are not a "problem" hunter and are not afraid of being eternally polluted by feeling sympathy for some one who is not quite proper, just go to "Raffles," have "an awfully good time," and let your admiration for the polished cracksman have full swing. You'll enjoy yourself thoroughly for over two hours, and perhaps those hours of hearty enjoyment will counteract any moral contamination which may result from liking a master thief.

A few years ago a notorious pickpocket of Paris was captured, and in talking over his "profession" with his captors he declared that his robbing was done, not through any maliciousness or depravity, but was attributable to the same spirit which inspires a pianist to work months at the mastering of some intensely difficult composition, or a painter to devote all his energies to the reproducing of some peculiarly elusive or subtle light effect he observes in nature.

In other words, it was the spirit of the artist which prompted him to pick a pocket. He cared nothing for the accomplishing of the average theft, but when he, for example, saw a handkerchief or pocketbook put into a pocket which was peculiarly inaccessible and where the chances of extracting it were of the slightest, then his artist spirit came to the fore and he picked the pocket just for the mere delight and gratification he derived from doing a neat and skilled piece of technical work. Gain was not his desire or purpose—he only wished to prove to himself that he could perform the difficult, just as does the pianist or the painter when either of them achieves a tricky task in their line.

It is a man similarly constituted mentally who is the central figure in "Raffles." He is a gentleman of high birth, of brilliant mind, and the most polished manners, but he has the keenest possible love for "sport" and the finest sport he knows is to steal in master fashion. He returns the stolen article to its owner, as a rule, for he has no use for it, after he has demonstrated to himself that he can steal it. The character is a fascinating one, and as presented by Mr. Bellew takes on a glamour of romance and daring which renders it irresistible. It is a faultless characterization, and rarely has the gifted English actor appeared to better advantage than he does in this part.

The company supporting Mr. Bellew is thoroughly competent. E. M. Holland, as the detective, who undertakes to ensnare Raffles, and who is inspired by the same love of "sport" as is the cracksman, has a rôle which suits him to the ground. And he plays it capitally. The calmness, the deliberateness, the absolute absence of every suggestion of spite or animosity, the surety with which each move is made, and the fleeting look of perplexity when a new problem is presented—these are elements in the portrayal which lend it artistic values and dramatic force.

Mr. Connor as Bunny won liking for the manly, stanch friend of the cracksman, and Mr. McCormack played the "common" thief, Crawshay, in convincing style.

Of the women of the cast, Olive Wyndham attracted by a remarkably sweet and girlish embodiment of Lady Ethel. The young actress has much in personal appearance, voice, and bearing to win her favor, and gives promise of accomplishing something of value if she continue as she has begun. Miss Blandick has little opportunity as Gwendolyn, but she pleases by playing the part simply and naturally, and in the proposal scene in the second act is especially satisfactory. Miss Atwood gives Mrs. Vidal the good looks and the dramatic strength it requires and Miss Russell brings distinction of manner to Lady Melrose. The production is a rarely complete and thorough one, the setting of the last two acts being particularly massive and tasteful.

Way Down East.

Thanksgiving "comes but once a year," and one of its heralds is the opening of the annual engagement of "Way Down East" at McVicker's theater. At least it has been so for several seasons past, and if last night's audience can be taken as any criterion, it is a custom that can be followed with profit for many future years. To the majority of theatergoers the piece no longer comes as a novelty, but rather in the guise of a happy reunion with tried and familiar friends.

Of the play itself and the admirable way in which the prominent rôles are handled by members of the original cast, nothing that is new is to be said. Miss Phoebe Davies has played the part of Anna Moore more times than she would like to remember, and last evening she was welcomed back in unmistakable fashion. John E. Brennan was a close second in popular favor, in his laughable portrayal of Hi Holler. Robert A. Fisher is still the Squire, J. H. Bunny the amorous Seth Holcomb, Ella Hugh Wood the gossipy Martha Perkins, C. B. Craig the absent minded professor, and Ulric B. Collins lends manly and agreeable qualities to his old part of David.

The sweet motherliness of Mrs. Stevens is missed in the portrayal of Mrs. Bartlett, Miss Bacon, who has succeeded her, lends the part a briskness and activity which is new, but is withal satisfactory. Kate Beneteau, the present Kate, is pretty, but at times affected.

Pals.

James J. Corbett began a week's engagement at the Great Northern yesterday afternoon, appearing in a four act play entitled "Pals." The piece is an elaboration by Edmund Day of the one act sketch formerly used in vaudeville, and is designed to give Mr. Corbett an opportunity to prove his histrionic abilities. It may be said that the late champion pleased his audience yesterday afternoon by giving a performance which had unmistakable heartiness and enthusiasm to commend it.

No one would ever accuse Mr. Corbett of being an actor of great subtlety, or say that he indulged in overwhelming bursts of dramatic passion, but it can truthfully be said that he is far from being a bad actor, and that he has made marked strides forward in his mastering of stage technic since he entered the theatrical profession. He still plays himself most of the time, but there are certain other stars who make high claims to artistic mightiness who do no more. As Mr. Corbett as a whole is a rather pleasing fellow to see played. That he is physical robustness and health personified goes without saying, and in the climax of the last act of "Pals" he indulges in a general "clearing out" of the villains in the play which leaves no room for doubt as to his bodily well being. He is good natured, genial, and generally likable, and the hours spent in watching such a man play himself are far from dull or uninteresting.

The play is a melodrama with a plentiful supply of farce, and some effective comedy scenes. The cast is a capable one, Hal Davis, as the awkward, dull looking but keen witted Higgins being especially amusing, and doing some commendable character work. Ines Macauley plays the heroine in attractive manner, being personaly pleasing, and reading her lines intelligently and easily. John Trevor is the second "pal," and is satisfactory, and Fred Hearn plays the cripple Underwood acceptably. W. L. HUBBARD.

SHORT STUDIES IN GEOLOGY.

——VOLCANOES.

VOLCANOES have been not unaptly compared to boils. Like boils, they are "external indications of inward disturbances." They are due to the action of that force which causes and has caused, directly or indirectly, most of the great changes upon the surface of our globe, its internal heat.

The temperature of mines increases one degree for every thirty-five to seventy-five feet of their depth. This has given rise to the belief that the interior of the earth may be a mass of molten lava. Water is continually finding its way, by various channels, into the earth. Before it has gone far downward it reaches a region whose temperature is so high as to raise its heat to the boiling point; and if it finds no way of escape to the surface it may keep on getting hotter and hotter until its heat is greater than that of liquid iron. As all know, such hot water expands with enormous force, and if at last it finds a weak place in the crust of the earth it will blow it up as it would the boiler of a locomotive, and rush out into the air in the form of steam, carrying quantities of dust, ashes, and molten lava from the interior with it. The internal explosion and its external results will be a volcano.

LAST STAGES OF A GREAT ERUPTION OF VESUVIUS

Practically all volcanoes are in or near the sea. When an extinct one is found inland, no matter how far, it is a sure sign that the tides of the ocean once rolled not far from where it stands. It used to be thought that volcanoes occurred in or near the sea because the water of the sea leaked through its bottom and gave rise to more steam than could be generated elsewhere. The most authoritative modern geologists reject this explanation. Heat is constantly flowing out of the earth into the surrounding atmosphere. Enough escapes every year from a square mile of surface to boil many barrels of water. Now, the sea is constantly depositing layers of rock on its bottom, which make it harder and harder for heat and steam to escape from the parts of the earth which are covered by water. The theory of modern geologists, therefore, is that the heat and steam under the sea, instead of gradually passing off, as do the heat and steam under the land, accumulate until there is a large quantity of them and then with great violence blow a hole in the earth and rush out as the steam of an engine rushes through its safety valve. Volcanoes are, in fact, the safety valves of the earth.

The way in which volcanoes and volcanic mountains originate cannot be better illustrated than by the story of the rise of Monte Nuovo. For two years the neighborhood of Naples, Italy, had been agitated by earthquakes. At about 1 o'clock the morning of Sept. 29, 1538, flames burst from the ground at a point near the Lucrine lake, and from the "horrid mouth," says a contemporary writer, "were vomited furiously smoke, fire, stones, and mud composed of ashes." Some of the stones thrown out were big as an ox. In less than twelve hours a mountain 5,000 feet high was built up, and the eruption continued several days longer. There has been a good deal of disputing among geologists as to how and of what materials a volcanic cone is constructed. The case of Monte Nuovo tends strongly to sustain those who contend that it is composed almost wholly of materials discharged from inside the earth and that any elevation of the ground which takes place at the time of the eruption is not a considerable factor in its building.

Volcanoes vary widely in appearance and in the nature of the substances they throw out. A geyser such as those of Iceland and of Yellowstone park is a true volcano which ejects nothing but hot water. The mud volcanoes of Colombia eject nothing but showers of mud. Usually, however, ashes, water, mud, rocks, and melted lava are all thrown out, and above the cone is a brilliant illumination, caused by the reflection of the light of white hot substances in the crater upon the ejected steam, and looking like flames of fire. When lava escapes from a volcano it is generally a fluid with a temperature of about 2,000 degrees and flows over the mountain, and even over the surrounding country with great velocity, burying and destroying everything in its path. Henry Norman says in his book, "The Real Japan," that lava thrown from a certain Japanese volcano flew through the air and along the ground ten miles in five minutes. As the lava cools it goes less rapidly; but it may creep irresistibly over the country for months. The bowllike craters of volcanoes are often raised to immense heights. The peak of Teneriffe towers 12,000 feet above sea level. Sometimes volcanoes are collected in chains, as in the Andes; many, like Etna, rise in solitary grandeur.

Volcanic eruptions are not confined to the land. They often take place under the sea. In June, 1831, the captain of a Sicilian vessel saw the water of the Mediterranean spouting sixty feet into the air. The column of water was followed by a column of steam 1,800 feet high. When he visited the place a short time later this sea captain found that an island twelve feet high, with a crater in its center, had been thrown up. By August the crater was 200 feet high. Graham island, as it was called, soon after disappeared in another eruption of the submarine volcano which had given it birth.

Many villages and even large cities have been totally annihilated by volcanic eruptions. The classic example of such catastrophes is the destruction of Herculaneum, Stabiæ, and Pompeii by Vesuvius. Until the year 79 Vesuvius was not known to be a volcano, although the Greeks and Romans had dwelt about it 400 years. Forests and fields covered its great sides; gardens grew in its crater; cities nestled at its base. Suddenly on the night of Aug. 24, 79, the top of the mountain was blown to pieces. The explosion was followed by a rain of stones, ashes, and lava which completely buried the surrounding cities and villages and left smoking and desolate this richest part of the Roman empire in its palmiest days. Vesuvius had another outbreak in 1631 which cost the lives of 18,000 people. Since then it has seldom been quiet.

The most terrible and deadly volcanic eruption of modern times was that of Mont Pelee on the island of Martinique in May, 1902, in which an extensive and fruitful district was in a few minutes turned into a desert and all the 30,000 people of St. Pierre except two lost their lives. St. Pierre was not buried, as were Herculaneum and Pompeii, and scientific men think its people were all swiftly asphyxiated by the deadly carbon gas which Mont Pelee threw out in enormous quantities.

It is hard to believe, in view of the awful destruction they deal around them, that volcanoes do more good than harm in the world, and yet that they do so is scientifically demonstrable. The plants of the earth live and thrive on the carbonic dioxide they absorb from the air. About one-tenth of the carbonic dioxide they consume they lay away in the rocks in the form of coal and limestone. Consequently, if there were no source from which the atmospheric supply of carbonic d

YOUTH HELD FOR MURDER OF FOUR.

Adolph Weber Accused of Killing Parents, Brother and Sister in California.

MOTIVE SEEN FOR CRIME.

Attempt Will Be Made to Fix Bank Robbery Upon the Young Prisoner.

Auburn, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Just after young Adolph Weber left the witness stand at the coroner's inquest late last night he was arrested and charged with the murder of his father, mother, sister, and brother, who met death in Weber's country home here Thursday night. Sheriff Kenna took young Weber into custody after the coroner's jury returned its verdict charging him with the crime.

The most direct allegations against Weber were made during the inquest last night by District Attorney Robinson. The attorney intimated that shortly after the four members of the Weber family were murdered Thursday night and their bodies burned Adolph Weber was seen to throw away a handful of cartridges in front of the postoffice here. The cartridges, which are in possession of the prosecuting attorney, are of the same caliber as those which were taken from the bodies of the prisoner's father, mother, and sister.

Motive for the Crime.

The district attorney also intimated that before the murder Adolph Weber had told Ardian Wills, his closest friend, that he expected to leave Auburn never to return. Nobody here thinks the prisoner is insane. A motive for the crime is found in the fact that by the death of Julius Weber, the father, the son came into full possession of the $70,000 which made up the elder Weber's estate.

There is no doubt that Adolph Weber's imagination has been inflamed by reading dime novels. His only close friend says he read these novels constantly and admired the heroes who committed crimes. He was the only calm and unconcerned person at the funeral of his family and he has shed no tears since the tragedy.

Alive to Legal Rights.

Weber took his arrest coolly, but was alive to what he considered to be his legal rights. After the service of the warrant he asked to be allowed to read the document.

"I see it has been signed by a justice of the peace," he coolly remarked, "and a justice of the peace has no authority in law to issue a warrant to arrest me."

Sheriff Keenan said he was perfectly satisfied with the legality of the warrant, and advised Weber to accompany him to the jail without causing a scene. Weber, after carefully buttoning his coat, announced that he was ready and with little loss of time the sheriff brought him to the jail. The prison doors had scarcely closed behind him, before he asked to be allowed to consult with an attorney.

Theory as to Crime.

The latest theory is that the murderer shot the father first; then, as the sister appeared in the hall, he shot her, and then the mother, seeing what had been done, screamed and started from him, when he shot her. She continued on across the room, and raising her left hand took down the telephone receiver to call for help, at which time she received the second shot, which penetrated the body just under the left arm. The child being the only one left, the murderer struck him over the head and felled him.

The operator at the central telephone office says that the line that the Weber residence is on showed "busy" about a half hour before the fire was discovered.

May Fix Bank Robbery.

Weber's description is said to tally with that of the robber who recently robbed the bank here of $5,000. It will be recalled that after the daring robbery in the middle of the day the robber drove rapidly down the road leading toward New Castle for about a half mile and then left the rig and took to the hills. At this time T. S. Palmer went to his home, and, being an expert rifle shot, took his rifle with him and went after the robber. Upon reaching the spot where the buggy was abandoned he noticed a man climbing the hill on the opposite side of the road from that which the robber was supposed to have taken. Upon overtaking the man he found him to be Adolph Weber.

Julius Weber missed one of his home made money bags about this time, which tallied closely with the one used by the man who held up the bank.

Jealousy Leads to Killing.

Martinsville, Ind., Nov. 13.—Albert Bowman was tonight shot and killed by Edward Thomas during a quarrel at Louisville. Thomas fled after the shooting, but was pursued and captured at Gosport. Jealousy is assigned as the cause of the quarrel.

Fatally Shot in Quarrel.

Cairo, Ill., Nov. 13.—Thomas O'Niel was shot and fatally wounded this afternoon by Arthur Grimes. The men are brothers-in-law, and the shooting was the result of a quarrel. Grimes made his escape.

Son Accused of Father's Murder.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 13.—John Bowerof, an aged farmer living near Bruning, Neb., is dead, and his son Henry is accused of his murder. Both were in Bruning late Saturday evening. On the way home they were heard quarreling. Later the body of the father was found. The coroner's jury has accused the son of murder and he is in jail at Geneva.

Fatal Shooting Over Horse Trade.

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 13.—Joseph Robinson, 32 years old, a well known horseman, was shot and mortally wounded here today by John Wyatt, a horse trader from Savannah, Mo. Three shots were fired, one taking effect in the abdomen, another in the spinal column. Trouble over a horse trade is attributed as the cause.

MAN IS SLAIN WHILE ASLEEP.

Mysterious White Person Believed to Have Killed Negro Janitor in Lodging House.

Mystery surrounds the killing early yesterday morning of John Phillips, 50 years old, a negro, while in bed in a lodging house at 82 West Madison street, of which he was janitor. A white man is suspected of having committed the crime. The police were unable to find any motive for the killing.

Roomers in the lodging house heard three shots fired and then some one running down the stairs. Phillips was found unconscious and dying. He apparently was asleep when shot.

During the evening Phillips and a white man had visited several "red light" district saloons. The police believe they quarreled and the janitor's companion went to his room to get revenge for some real or imagined wrong.

Jealous Woman Stabs Rival.

Sarah Robinson, 16 years old, 2635 Armour avenue, was probably fatally stabbed early yesterday morning by Demple Morris, with whom she quarreled over the affections of Jeff Wills, 2827 State street. The women met in front of a saloon at 2812 State street.

Wills and the Morris woman were arrested. All are colored. They refused to make any statement regarding the stabbing.

Saloonkeeper Charged with Shooting.

Walter Gorney, a saloonkeeper at 2733 Archer avenue, will be arraigned today charged with assaulting D. R. Hickey, 2626 Stark street, a contractor. After a fight in the saloon Saturday evening, in which Michael Carnykiewicz is said to have been involved, the proprietor is alleged to have shot and slightly wounded Hickey.

Mystery in a Shooting.

Bernard Horrigan, 320 East Twenty-fourth street, is at the county hospital with two bullet wounds, inflicted, he says, by a stranger. The police say Horrigan knows who shot him.

STORM GRIPS EAST; NEW YORK CUT OFF

Wires Are Prostrated Over a Wide Extent of Country as Result of a Terrific Gale.

has been found, and fears are entertained for their safety. The vessel is in a particularly exposed condition and the chances of its being saved are slight.

The schooner was coming through Vineyard sound from the eastward, and was proceeding under its foresail, the gale being too fierce to permit more canvas being carried.

The schooner tacked and tried to work into the cove for anchorage, but the wind bore it off, and as it swung away it struck with a crash upon a ledge of rock no more than 100 yards from the lighthouse.

Keeper Carson had no boat that could be launched, and besides the seas were so high that nothing but a surf boat could possibly escape almost instant destruction. No lights were shown from the schooner after it struck and no answer was given to frequent hailings.

As the seas were breaking over the craft it was not believed that it would hold together until daylight. It struck in a particularly exposed position and no vessel could be expected to stand the terrible pounding on the jagged rocks to which it was subjected.

Tug Capsized; Captain Lost.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 13.—While attempting to enter the harbor at 6 o'clock this evening the tug John Gregory was capsized by the heavy seas and sent to the bottom just outside the breakwater, carrying with it Capt. Del Minnis. The other three persons aboard were rescued by the life saving crew after a hard battle with the waves.

Gale Raging on Lake Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 13.—A severe northeast gale, with snow flurries, is raging on Lake Huron. Many of the stanchest steel steamers have been compelled to return here for shelter. Among the vessels in shelter here tonight are the following: Russia, Hattie Wells, Thew, Starke, Shamrock, Old Gratwick, New Gratwick, Monohansett and barges, Scott, Donaldson and barges, Dalton, Spokane, Mather, Frontenac, Seneca, Linden, Judd, Levi Grant. Many others whose names could not be learned are lying at docks or are anchored down the river.

Tows Waterlogged Schooner.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 13.—The steamer Fairbairn, which passed up this afternoon, reports having passed off Colchester the steamer Lizzie Madder, towing a schooner which was badly waterlogged. It was evidently running for the Detroit river.

Chicago Vesselman Killed.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 13.—Capt. Thomas Myers of Chicago, commander of the schooner S. A. Wood, was instantly killed early this morning by the fallings of a mast on his boat. The body was taken to the morgue, where it is being held pending the arrival of relatives from Chicago. Capt. Myers is the father of James A. Myers, a vessel agent having an office in the Royal Insurance building in that city. The Wood reached Milwaukee Saturday night after an exceedingly rough voyage from Manitowoc. After the boat had been tied up at the dock it was found that the mainmast was cracked a few feet above deck. Capt. Myers was directing the splicing of the timber when it suddenly tottered and fell. Capt. Myers was one of the oldest masters sailing the lakes, and in the past had been the owner of a number of sailing vessels.

Death in Gale at Toledo.

Toledo, O., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A terrific gale swept over this section this afternoon, unroofing buildings and doing much damage in the oil fields. The flagstaff on the "Spitzer," the largest office building in the city, was blown off, striking a well known citizen, Frank Maher, on the head, killing him instantly. Other minor accidents are reported.

Eight Inches of Snow.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—The storm here seriously interfered with telegraph and telephone communication. Rain, sleet, and snow fell all day, with a maximum wind velocity of forty-one miles. The weather bureau figures show that if the snow had not immediately melted it would have reached a depth of eight inches. Reports by train from points in the state show that a heavy snow fell, averaging more than six inches. At the Delaware breakwater the barometer this afternoon got down to 28.54, the lowest reading in the history of the station.

First Snow at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—The first snowfall of the season occurred today, several inches covering the ground. It started with a drizzling rain, which later turned into a heavy wet snow. The telephone service was seriously hampered.

At Baltimore a snow, wind, and rain storm caused an almost complete prostration of electric light, telegraph, telephone, and trolley cars. A number of accidents were caused by the heavily charged wires, but so far as known there have been no fatalities.

The Baltimore weather observer sent out a warning to masters of vessels to the effect that a second storm is fast traveling up the Atlantic coast.

Snow in the South.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 13.—Nearly an inch of snow fell in Knoxville and throughout the eastern part of the state today. The coldest weather of the season accompanied it.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13.—The edge of the snow storm struck Atlanta this morning. The fall here was light, but is reported heavier in the northern part of the state.

STORM FELT ON THE LAKE.

Heavy Winds and Unfavorable Conditions Drive Vessels Back Into Port for Refuge.

High northerly winds, accompanied at different points by snow flurries or rain, put a serious embargo on navigation throughout the upper lakes yesterday. None but the larger steamers were able successfully to face the storm, the smaller craft generally seeking shelter at havens of refuge on Lakes Superior, Michigan, and Huron. Last night the main force of the blow had shifted to the eastward. At Chicago a maximum velocity of forty-two miles was reported in the morning.

Nearly all of the boats which have left port during the last twenty-four hours sought shelter at points along the west shore. The steamer Denver, bound for Detroit with a cargo of grain, after being out in the lake since Saturday afternoon, returned to the shelter of the breakwater in the morning.

The third snow flurry so far this year was in the air from early morning yesterday until 1:30 p. m., but the fall was so slight that the bureau made no report of it. The average temperature was 3 degrees below the normal. The highest and lowest points were reached within three hours in the early morning, the range being from 31 degrees at 2 o'clock, to 40 degrees at 5 o'clock.

DROPS DEAD WHILE AT MASS.

Jacob D. Hutson, Formerly of Chicago, Dies in St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church, Zanesville, O.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 13.—Jacob D. Hutson, for twenty years foreman of the Baltimore and Ohio railway shops of Chicago, dropped dead while attending devotional services in St. Thomas' Roman Catholic church here today.

DEATHS.

RIVER YIELDS WEIRD YARN

ABRAHAM ROBIN, RESCUED, TELLS OF BEING DRUGGED.

Found Floating Near Van Buren Street, Man Says He Was Held Up and Thrown Into Water—Police Doubt Story—Ambrose McGregor, Formerly of Whiting, Ind., Tries to Commit Suicide When Arrested on a Charge of Robbery.

Abraham Robin was rescued from drowning in the Chicago river at Van Buren street last night. He said he had been held up on the Jackson boulevard bridge by two men and because he had no money was forced to drink "something sweet," and then thrown over the railing. The police doubt the story.

Robin resides at 135 De Koven street. Bridgetender A. J. McDonald at the Van Buren street bridge was startled by a cry and saw him in the river. The crew of the tug T. T. Morford rescued the man. He was exhausted. The police took him to the Samaritan hospital.

When rescued Robin's waistcoat was buttoned and his pocketbook found intact in the inside pocket. There was no witness to the alleged attempted robbery and the man could give no description of his assailants.

Tries Suicide When Arrested.

Arrested on a charge of burglary, Ambrose McGregor, 5023 Cottage Grove avenue, in the evening attempted suicide by swallowing carbolic acid in the saloon of Louis Musser, at 347 Thirty-seventh street. The bottle was knocked from his hand. The prisoner is said to be a son of a heavy stockholder in the Standard Oil company. He formerly was employed by that corporation as cashier at Whiting.

McGregor is 28 years old. He is charged with breaking open the telephone box in J. M. Collins' plumbing shop, 324 Thirty-seventh street. He also is accused of stealing a revolver, watch, and money from Musser, in whose saloon he was arrested.

Robbers Give Victim Carfare.

By parlying with the two robbers who had taken his valuables, Walter Madson, 694 North Maplewood avenue, secured the return of 35 cents and a penknife. He was held up at 11 p. m. at Hirsch street and Oakley avenue. The robbers took $10 and a gold watch valued at $40.

Madson pleaded the humiliation of having to borrow the money from his wife, and one of the men counted out 25 cents for lunch and 10 cents for car fare.

Man Is Mysteriously Attacked.

The police are investigating an attack made on Albert Lander, 127 West Sixteenth street, by a person whose motive is not believed to have been robbery. The encounter was at the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad tracks and West Sixteenth street. Lander's assailant stabbed him in the neck. The injured man was taken to the county hospital. No motive for the attack is known.

MAY BUILD A SKYSCRAPER ON THE BROWNING-KING SITE.

Plans Started Following Fire at Madison Street and Wabash Avenue—Firemen Injured on Steamer Dies.

The trustees of the Skinner estate, owner of the Browning, King & Co.'s building at Wabash avenue and Madison street, which was burned Saturday night, are arranging for a meeting to decide whether the structure shall be rebuilt or whether a skyscraper shall be erected on its site.

Ambrose Cramer and C. S. Burt said yesterday that the conference necessarily would be delayed, as their co-trustees reside in New York and in California. The Mrs. Henry J. Willing estate is a part owner.

A rumor that Montgomery Ward & Co. would purchase the property and build was denied by Charles H. Thorna, treasurer of the concern.

A heavy police guard was maintained to guard the remaining property and to keep the inquisitive from being struck by the street cars. Several accidents were narrowly averted. Thousands of persons saw the ruins yesterday.

TWO ASPHYXIATED BY GAS.

Men Found Dead, but No Motive for Suicide Known in Either Case.

Mathias Six, a tailor living at 141 Fullerton avenue, was found dead in his bed at midnight Saturday. He had been asphyxiated by gas.

He had been suffering from asthma for a number of years, and had often jestingly said that Theodore Birr, with whom he had been boarding, would have to bury him. Notwithstanding this it is believed by his friends that his death was accidental.

Otto Kranding, 24 years old, was found dead in his room in the morning asphyxiated by gas. He resided with his parents at 1195 Wabansia avenue. He retired Saturday night in apparently good spirits.

Frank Schultz, 40 years old, thought to have come to Chicago from the east, committed suicide last night in a saloon at 93 Canal street by shooting himself. Cards found in his pockets indicated that he was a member of the Buffalo Marine Firemen's association. More than $20 was found in his pockets.

PERRY CHARGES FOR GRAND JURY.

NEW FACTS ARE SAVED.

Discoveries Are to Be Used Only in the Attempt to Secure Arson Indictment.

A grand jury investigation of the arson charges against Isaac N. Perry became almost a certainty yesterday as the result of a conference between Fire Attorney Johnson, Assistant State's Attorney Lindley, and State's Attorney Deneen.

Important new evidence, which Attorney Johnson said last night had been brought to light, was discussed at the conference. All of the attorneys for the prosecution refused to talk of the evidence beyond declaring it materially strengthened the case against Perry.

Warrants Closer Investigation.

In view of this additional information and the general mass of evidence which had been gathered previously it was decided that the charges of arson against the former bank president were supported sufficiently to warrant a more thorough sifting than a justice court hearing could furnish. The case before Justice Foster will not be dropped, but will be prosecuted as energetically as it has been thus far. The new material, however, will be saved for the proposed grand jury investigation.

"We believe sufficient prima facia evidence already has been presented by the prosecution," said Attorney Johnson, "to warrant the holding of Perry over to the grand jury. Other facts which have just been found out we do not think it necessary to introduce in the justice court hearing."

A rearrangement of the evidence advanced by the prosecution will be made, it was stated, and together with the fresh facts will be presented to the grand jury through the state's attorney's office.

Justice Court Hearing Today.

The new course adopted by the prosecution is expected to shorten the hearing before Justice Foster. Attorney Johnson said, however, that a half dozen witnesses summoned by the prosecution remained to be examined. He does not expect to rest the case until Wednesday.

Among the witnesses who will testify today are Edwin C. Day, who, acting as receiver, sold the Pease Car and Locomotive works to Perry, and Bernard A. Eckhart, a former director of the National Bank of North America. The prosecution hopes to bring out in the latter's testimony the fact that Perry had financial difficulties in the operation of the Hegewisch plant.

Defense Has Many Witnesses.

The defense, according to Attorney Moritz Rosenthal, has twenty-five witnesses at hand to show that the charges against Perry are unfounded.

"It has not been decided yet," he said, "whether we shall move to have the case dismissed for want of sufficient evidence against our client. If we do, it will not be because we have no evidence in defense of Mr. Perry."

DEATH COMES TO J. S. GIBBS.

Banker and Old Resident of Chicago Passes Away After a Lingering Illness.

James S. Gibbs, vice president of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, died at his home, 400 Superior street, yesterday after an illness which lasted several months. He was 61 years old.

Mr. Gibbs was born at Rochester, N. Y., and at an early age he came to Chicago with his father, George A. Gibbs. At the age of 20 he embarked in the grain business with his father, who built the first elevator erected on the Chicago river. A few years later he entered the banking business, and at the time of the incorporation of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank he was made cashier, a position which he occupied until 1902, when he was advanced to the position of vice president.

In 1873 he married Miss Rowena M. Mulford of Huntsville, Ala. They have one child, Anna de Mar, the wife of a Paris architect.

Mr. Gibbs was a member of the Chicago and Union League clubs.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at St. James' Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. James S. Stone. Interment will be at Rosehill.

WEEK'S GAMES IN REVIEW

Football "Championships" in Doubt, Because None of Claimants Meet This Year.

As a result of Saturday's football games, but two unbeaten teams are left in the west. The victory of the Wolverines in the hard fought game at Ann Arbor, and the decisive defeat of Wisconsin at the hands of the Gophers, for the second time places Michigan and Minnesota in the lead, and as these two elevens are not scheduled to play this year the championship for the second time must be in doubt.

The scoring of four touchdowns by Michigan against Chicago's two completes a record of four years in which defeat has never come to the Wolverines. Only one tie game has been played by Yost's men in that time, the contest between Michigan and Minnesota last year. The game of the latter team against the Badgers on Saturday, in which the Gophers made the same score against Coach Curtis' men as Yost's eleven did two weeks ago, places them again on a par with the Michigan team. Unless the squad under Dr. Williams should take a slump in the remaining ten days of the season each team will have as good a claim to supremacy as the other.

Chicago's Defense a Surprise.

Perhaps the most surprising feature of the games in the west, was the game defense of Chicago's battered eleven against the fierce attack of Michigan. The game throughout was Michigan's, the score was Michigan's. With perhaps the exception of Eckersall's brilliant running, the credit for advancing the ball belongs almost entirely to Michigan. But the glory of the struggle was with Chicago. Outweighed twenty pounds to the man, bruised and weakened by the loss of nearly all its men upon whom it had depended for success, the maroon eleven put up a game that, for pluck and gameness, has seldom been equaled. The small knot of maroon rooters who accompanied the eleven to Ann Arbor cheered their heroes to the echo as they left the field; magnificent in defeat.

The contest brought out the two characteristics that have in the past been the most conspicuous features in the teams coached by Yost and Stagg. The former has always been famous for the perfect teamwork and wonderful offense of his elevens, and seldom have these points been more pronounced than in Saturday's game. The Wolverines had possession of the ball throughout almost the entire game, barring a short time in the first half, when Chicago made its first touchdown. They fought hard, and in concert, and earned every inch of ground they gained.

Contest of Spectacular Features.

The work of Chicago's eleven, on the other hand, showed defensive work of the highest class and pluck to the last degree. Stagg had prepared his team for Yost's offense, and in the work of the men under him proved that in devising a defense for a certain given offense he has few equals in the country.

The work of individual players made the game spectacular in the highest degree. Heston was easily the star for the Wolverines, making the longest run of the game, and a number of times carrying the ball for 10 and 15 yards. His teammates in the backfield—Tom Hammond, Norcross, and Longman—crowded Heston closely, however, and, unlike him, did not offend by fumbling.

For Chicago the clever running and strong punting of Eckersall, the line bucking of Bezek, and the defensive work of Speik, Kennedy, and Speidell were the features that enabled Chicago to hold Michigan to four touchdowns and to score twice upon the maize and blue.

In punting the maroon quarter performed splendidly, making a total of 353 yards the eight times he kicked the ball. Harry Hammond, his opponent in the punting game, was only called upon twice, making seventy yards in the two punts.

Michigan's Offense Superb.

In advancing the ball the game was almost wholly Michigan's. In the first half the Wolverines carried the oval 278 yards by straight football, against eighty-one gained by Chicago. In the second half, when the maroons were weakened by the absence of all the backs except Eckersall, Chicago could advance the ball only nineteen yards by scrimmages, though the fleet maroon quarter back ran thirty-five yards for a touchdown. Michigan in this period made 256 yards.

The game closed the season for Michigan, unless a post-season game should be played with Minnesota or some eastern team, either of which events Coach Yost declares is impossible. To Stagg is left the task of gathering together the fragments of his injured team to meet Wisconsin on Thanksgiving.

Maroons' List of Casualties.

After the game, when an inventory of the men was taken, it was found that Parry had a broken leg, De Tray a sprained ankle, Bezdek a bad leg, Hitchcock bad cuts over each eye, and Catlin a setback in the leg which has been bothering him since the Northwestern game. Michigan, on the other hand, had not been forced to substitute a man on account of inuries, though Megoffin was sent in in the last half to take the place of Tom Hammond.

The wonderful improvement of Northwestern in the game with Illinois proved a surprise to the rooters and players of the state eleven, and vindicated the faith of the Methodists in their team. The purple performed 100 per cent better, both in offense and defense, over its work against Chicago, and throughout the game had the better of the argument. After the tie game with the maroons the Illini felt reasonably sure of winning the contest. The improvement in the defensive work of Northwestern is due largely to the work of Comner, the former Harvard player, who has been coaching the line during the last week, while McCornack has showed that he is still as great a coach as ever in the offense which his eleven exhibited.

Next Saturday's Game Important.

Owing to this improvement, the game against Minnesota next Saturday is anxiously anticipated. The Gophers have had easy work this season, except for the games against Nebraska and Wisconsin, and in the latter game they clearly outplayed their opponents. Northwestern, however, should prove an entirely different proposition. The defense it exhibited against the Illini is superior to anything the Badgers have shown this season, and the contest should be hard and close. Upon it will depend to a large extent the standing of Minnesota in the race for the championship.

Of the other western games, Purdue had an easy time with Indiana, outplaying the latter eleven from start to finish. Nebraska experienced defeat at the hands of the Haskell Indians by a score of 14 to 6, a larger score than that made by Minnesota. Iowa and Drake overwhelmed Grinnell and Simpson, respectively, while Oberlin defeated Ohio State by a small score.

Only Five "Big" Games Remain.

But two "big" games in the west, and three in the east remain to be played. Chicago and Wisconsin are to try conclusions on Thanksgiving day, and Minnesota and Northwestern meet next Saturday, while the Yale-Harvard game next Saturday, the Penn-Cornell contest Thanksgiving, and the Army-Navy struggle for national honors on the Saturday after Thanksgiving are the games in the east. Dartmouth and Pennsylvania remain the only unbeaten elevens in the east.

HARD WORK FOR BIG GAME

NORTHWESTERN PLAYERS TO BEGIN STRENUOUS PRACTICE.

Coach McCornack's Men to Meet Minnesota in the Only "Big Nine" Contest Next Saturday, and Effort Will Be Made to Make Good Showing Against Gophers—Squad Is Just Rounding Into Shape—"Rooters' Praise Eleven for Its Defeat of Illinois.

Northwestern begins today to prepare for Minnesota, whom it meets next Saturday on Marshall field. It is the only game between big nine colleges on that day, and has been looked forward to all season by McCornack as the biggest contest on his schedule. The Gophers, by equaling Michigan's score against Wisconsin, proved themselves fully as strong as the Wolverines, which means that Northwestern will have to improve a great deal to stand any show.

Encouraged by the victory over Illinois, the purple squad will start work in a spirit of determination to improve its season's record by a strong showing next Saturday. McCornack said yesterday that his eleven had just begun to round into form, but that it would be difficult to have them in tiptop shape for the game. With Connor, whose work before the Illini contest developed a marked improvement in the line, and Jennings, a former Dartmouth coach, who will arrive in Evanston today, to help him, every effort will be made to have the squad put up the best game of the season in this final contest.

The team came out of Saturday's game without any serious injuries save bruises. The training quarters were crowded all day with enthusiasts talking about the victory and loud in their praises of all of the men, commenting especially on the work of Davis, Johnson, Rueber, and Simpson.

The dispute about the safety which was not allowed by Referee Clarby was one of the principal subjects discussed, and it was generally agreed that the two points should have been allowed. An alumnus, speaking of the ruling, said: "Although the decision is logical from the wording of the rule, different members of the rules committee have, by their decisions in games, shown that no such interpretation was intended. After Wheeler touched the ball before it crossed the goal line it was possible for our men to score a touchdown, but Wheeler himself downed the ball behind the goal to save a score. It is from this fact that the word 'safety' is derived. When a team downs the ball behind its own goal, where no score by the other side is possible, it is a touchback; but where the ball has been touched and put into play a score is possible, and if the defending team then downs it behind the line it is a safety."

No scrimmage work will be given this afternoon, but tomorrow the first eleven will be lined up against the scrubs for a hard battle. This will be continued until Friday, when signal practice will again be reverted to. It is hoped that all of the men, including Turner and Weinberger, will be in shape for the Minnesota game.

MINNESOTA MEN IN GOOD SHAPE.

Case and Thorpe Only Players Injured in Wisconsin Game—Claim Better Rating than Michigan.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A peaceful calm exists in the Twin cities today. The excitement of the last week has subsided, and, barring the usual bruises, the Minnesota players are in good condition and ready to make the most of the short week of practice before the Northwestern game. Case received an injury to his shoulder and Thorpe is limping slightly. Both men will be in good shape again in a few days.

From the magnificent showing of yesterday the Minnesota partisans claim the right to be rated above Michigan in the fight for western championship honors. The Wisconsin players admit the Gophers' defense surpassed that of Coach Yost's men, and that the attack was equally strong. The Wisconsin team was also in much better fighting trim than when it met Michigan.

All of Minnesota's scores were made by straight football. Penalties and costly fumbles when the Gophers were within striking distance of the visitors' goal line were all that kept the score as low as 28 to 0. Can Michigan put up a better claim upon the comparative score method?

ILLINOIS TEAM IS BACK HOME.

Players Return from the Northwestern Game Badly Bruised—Defeat Is Worst in Years.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Illinois football team returned from the Northwestern game today worn in body and spirit. The Illini show the effects of the grueling battle at Shepard field, but the physical pains are nothing as compared with the mental depression. When the purple waved triumphant over the orange and blue on Saturday the state team was dealt the most crushing blow it has received in years.

While the Illini could not have been charged with overconfidence, the men were sure of victory, despite the cautions of the coaches. No excuses are offered. There is no complaint that the team had an "off day." "Northwestern delivered the goods, that's all," say the graduates. Locally, the 5,000 enthusiasts who waited for the news could hardly believe it.

A slogan, "Stand by the team," was raised, and the defeated Illini had much of the sting of defeat removed by the spirit of the "rooters." A tremendous effort will be made to win the Iowa and Nebraska games. This, it is believed, will give them a good rank in the first division of the big nine.

Kirk has a bad leg, Fairweather and Rothgeb black eyes, and Carrithers an injured back, while their teammates have sundry bruises and black and blue spots. Rothgeb is again the idol of the "rooters" with Capt. Fairweather. The enthusiasts eagerly discuss his chances of making end on the all American eleven. It is probable Taylor will play regular quarter the rest of the season. Wheeler's showing at the start of the game on Saturday was a great disappointment.

New Plunger in the East.

One of the sensations of the racing at Aqueduct yesterday was the success of a hitherto unknown speculator named F. Wilson. He hails from Canada and has been a hustler and a stable boy for several years. He arrived here several days ago and was taken in tow by Willis Shields, trainer for E. R. Thomas. Wilson was one of the few who bet on Ocean Tide. He won $3,000 by her victory. Then he went right back to Thespian in the fifth race and won $2,000 more. Elated at his success, he lost no time in bidding Thespian from $500, the entered selling price, up to $1,900, at which point Matt Byrnes, who trained the Rapallo filly for J. B. Haggin, let her go to Wilson. The latter hurried to the secretary's office and paid cash for his new purchase out of a huge roll of greenbacks. Somebody was unkind enough to say that Wilson merely represented Shields in the whole transaction, but the Canadian denied the assertion with much wrath.—New York Sun.

"Spider" Kelly on a Spree.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—"Spider" Kelly, the prizefighter and trainer, at his saloon on Eddy street last night got into a hot discussion with some customers said to belong to the Swedish consulate and played a tattoo on the face of one of them. Several policemen entered the saloon to quell the disturbance. "Spider" grabbed a bottle and threatened to brain any one who approached him. In the melee the prizefighter went down but not out as to languare. He was tumbled into a patrol wagon and taken to the city hall station, where he was booked for drunkenness.

WANDERERS WIN A GAME.

DEFEAT CALUMETS IN ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL LEAGUE, 6 TO 3.

Contest Is Brilliantly Played, the Team Work Being One of the Features—Douglas Park Players Score a Victory Over the Hyde Park Greys by a Count of 5 to 0, While the Blues Increase Lead by Taking the Lake Shores Into Camp.

	Goals for.	Goals against.	W.	L.	Tied.	Pts.
H. P. Blues	36	13	8	0	1	17
Calumets	20	19	6	3	0	12
Wanderers	38	21	4	3	1	9
Douglas Park	23	21	3	4	1	7
Lake Shores	19	28	2	6	1	5
H. P. Greys	10	35	0	6	2	2

Three games were played in the Association Football league yesterday, the Wanderers defeating the Calumets, 6 to 3; the Douglas Parks winning from the Hyde Park Greys, 5 to 3, while the Hyde Park Blues won a victory over the Lake Shores, 5 to 2.

The Wanderers-Calumet game, which was played at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue, was full of brilliant playing and good team work. In the first half the game was all in favor of the Parkside team, and it had run up a score of 4 to 1 before half time was called.

Govier scored the first goal for the Wanderers after ten minutes of play, and the next ten went without further scoring. In the last fifteen minutes Govier again got one through, and the Parkside men made two more points, the first being headed by Dixon and the second being made by Govier after a corner kick. Montgomery scored one for the Calumets before the half was ended. In this half the Calumet players made one goal, which was not allowed because of offside play.

Dixon Scores for Wanderers.

After thirteen minutes of the second half Dixon scored another point for the Wanderers, which was soon followed by two Calumet goals, made by Jeffs and Courtice, and McLaughlin pushed the sixth goal through for the Wanderers in the remaining time. Lineup:

Wanderers.	Position.	Calumets.
Balster	Goal	E. Moran
Spencer, Waller	Backs	Bowman, A. Murray
Williamson	Left half back	Beaton
Elmslie	Center half back	Montgomery
Dewar	Right half back	Jackson
Jeffrey	Outside left	C. Bowman
Barker	Center	Montgomery
McLaughlin	Inside right	Jeffs
Dixon	Outside right	Stevenson

Umpire—Warren. Time of halves—35 minutes. Goals—Govier [3], Dixon [2], and McLaughlin for Wanderers; Montgomery, Jeffs, and Courtice for Calumets.

Douglas Park Is Winner.

Douglas Park defeated the Hyde Park Grays in an evenly matched game at Sixty-first and St. Lawrence avenue, scoring 5 points to its opponents' 3. Both teams played well and with good combination, but the high wind prevented good passing, and frequent fumbling resulted. The Grays won the toss and chose the north goal, forcing the west siders to play against the strong wind in the first half. Douglas Park was the first to score, A. Shallcross getting one through on a penalty kick. The Grays bracked and evened matters in a few minutes, and each scored one more point before half time was called.

In the second half Douglas Park had things more its own way, and for the first twenty minutes kept the ball in the Grays' territory, adding two more goals. The Grays started a bunch of combination plays down the field that looked dangerous, but they could only score one point on them. The west siders added another point before time was called. Lineup:

Douglas Park.	Position.	H. P. Greys.
Lundberg	Goal	Wright
J. Shallcross	Right back	Tunley
J. Hurd	Left back	Maddock
Adams	Right half back	Brotherton
Calcutt	Center half back	Heale
Munton	Left half back	Wright
J. Hurd	Outside right	Sharples
Thompson	Inside right	Hibbard
Cruise	Center	Deacon
F. Shallcross	Inside left	Sheppard
A. Shallcross	Outside left	A. Sharples

Goals—A. Sharples [2], Munton, and Cruise for Douglas Park; Deacon [2] and Sharples for Greys.

Blues Increase Lead.

Blues.	Position.	Lake Shores.
Robert	Goal	Sullivan
A. Walsh, Rogers	Backs	Ward, Kallis
Parker	Half back	Hogan
Scott	Half back	Ryan
Sheppard	Half back	Lynch
Withington	Outside right	Sullivan
Passett	Inside right	Dockery
Evans	Center	Dooley

Goals—Scott, Bassett [2], and Evans [2] for Hyde Park; Dockery and Lemon for Lake Shores.

SCHOOL TEAM TO GO EAST

NORTH DIVISION MAY PLAY EXETER ACADEMY AT BOSTON.

Local Eleven, Which Has Been After a Game for Several Weeks, Will Meet the "Prep" Boys on Nov. 29 if the Principal of the Eastern Institution Gives Consent—Arrangements Made to Have Contest Take Place at the American League Grounds at Hub.

If the principal of Exeter academy gives his consent to the contest the North Division High school eleven will play the Exeter academy eleven at the American league grounds in Boston on Nov. 29.

The local team is willing and anxious for the match and the Exeter team would also welcome such a meeting between eastern and western school elevens, but the principal of the eastern school dislikes the idea of keeping the football players of the school in training so late in the year.

Carl Green, the secretary of the Boston American league club, has arranged facilities for the contest on the Huntington avenue grounds of the champion baseball club, if it is played.

North Division last fall went to Brooklyn and overwhelmed the Brooklyn Boys' High team, and the preceding fall Hyde Park made 105 against the Brooklyn Polytechnic. Exeter academy, however, will prove an entirely different proposition from these teams, as it is from Exeter that Yale and Harvard have always drawn many of their best players. The Exeter club of Boston will take the game under its auspices if it is arranged.

MICHIGAN'S SEASON IS ENDED.

Official Announcement Is Made and the Players Break Training—Yost to Go East.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—All hopes of a post-season football game either with Minnesota for the western championship or with one of Michigan's numerous eastern applicants was destroyed by an official announcement of Athletic Manager Charles Baird. "Michigan's 1904 football season," he said, "closed on Nov. 12. There will be no more games this year. Coach Yost will leave here by the middle of the week."

Another disappointing indication of Michigan's determination to play no more this year is the complete break of training of the football team. Most of the men attended smokers Saturday evening, and today noon were given the annual "break training" dinner, with which the eleven always closes the season by eating everything on the bill of fare that is prohibited during football season.

Coach Yost left town this morning, but will return again on Monday. When he goes east on Wednesday he will be accompanied by Trainer Fitzpatrick and Manager Baird. Ostensibly these men go to see the big games of the east, but there are fears here that Yost and Fitzpatrick may visit some of the eastern colleges which are known to be after their services. An eastern game for next year, or new football material, may also be looked after.

Michigan's football players are every one sound and happy tonight, and they are not even as much battered up as after the Wisconsin game. Quarter Back Norcross, who went into the game limping, walks a trifle lamer. Left Guard Schulte, the worst crippled player before the game, looks better than he did on Thursday.

There is a general feeling that Yost did not succeed in producing the team work which has heretofore marked the season's end on Thanksgiving.

Every one is well satisfied at Michigan over the score against Chicago. No maroon eleven of recent years has received so many compliments as Chicago day. The team's gameness is responsible for this friendly feeling.

Still a little tired from Saturday's battle, the Michigan eleven favors the plan of closing the season now. Capt. Heston said: "We shall all be glad to escape that last eight days' work before Thanksgiving, which is always done in snow on frozen ground and at the expense of the worst injuries of the year. The season has been quite long enough already."

Tribunes Lose Three Games.

The Examiners won three straight games from The Tribune five yesterday at Mussey's in the Newspaper league, thereby opening a gap of five games in the championship race. In the other series the Sun team treated the Journals to a whitewash, the result placing them in second place.

AT THE BILLARD HALLS.

C. A. A. LIKELY TO SECURE NATIONAL AMATEUR TOURNAMENT.

Official Announcement of the Local Organization That It Will Extend the Use of the Gymnasium to the Class A Experts—Capt. Anson Seeks a Three Cushion Match with Lloyd Jevne—Standing of Players in Local Contests.

The next national amateur billiard championship tournament, which has always been held in the east, will, if the Chicago Athletic association has its way in the matter, be held at the big Michigan avenue clubhouse.

This was decided by the members of the house committee recently when it gave George H. Jenny and Everett C. Brown permission to extend the use of the clubhouse to the N. A. A. for one week in January.

A movement to bring the best class A experts to Chicago has been under way for two years. Now that the Chicago Athletic association has taken the matter in hand there is little doubt Chicago will be the next battle ground for class A experts. San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago, and Cleveland have been represented in the various tournaments, and the westerners think it due them to battle for the billiard supremacy west of the Alleghenies.

To Be Held in Gymnasium.

The Chicago Athletic association, should it be successful, will hold the tourney in its gymnasium, and in all probability will be represented. A preliminary tourney is being spoken of, and, if arranged, will enlist the following members: Dr. A. T. Gilmore, A. F. Dexter, J. D. Adams, Harry Page, C. E. Field, G. W. Davis, Robert Neihle, T. E. Cunningham, and G. W. Best. It is doubtful if any of these can show speed enough to contest successfully with Conklin, McGinness, Mullen, Foss, Gardner, Dr. Mial, Poergenburg, Townsend, and others that have taken part in former tournaments.

L. Bensinger is making efforts to bring together in a four handed tournament at eighteen inch balk line, two shots in. John Mathews, Clem Ellison, George Wheeler, and Al Taylor, considered the best professionals in town. Three of those named have already entered, and the fourth, it is hoped, will be induced to enter within a few days.

Capt. Anson thinks enough of his three cushion carom game to take a shy at Lloyd Jevne, the champion at the angle game. "Cap" is willing to bet $250 on his chances provided Jevne will play a three nights' session at Anson's room.

Standing in Local Tourneys.

The clicking of ivories was heard in tournaments last week in all the big billiard rooms. At Bensinger's Monroe street place, Conklin is tied for first place with Rein and Bliss. Ballard holds the lead in Foley's tourney, Brown has a clean score of four wins in Mussey's, and Kempner is the star performer at Schaefer's.

Following are the standings at the various rooms:

AT BENSINGER'S [BALK LINE].

	W.	L.		W.	L.

MELLODY-RYAN FIGHT TONIGHT.

William "Honey" Mellody, the welterweight champion, and "Buddy" Ryan, the local welter, will meet in the opening show of the new Harlem Athletic club in the west side suburb tonight. The men will fight ten rounds. Mellody and Ryan will furnish the windup, and if their previous battles are any criterion the contest should be a good one.

According to the stipulations of the match, both fighters are to weigh in at 142 pounds at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Both boys are said to be well under the limit. Mellody and Ryan have met on two other occasions, the result in both contests favoring the local boy. In their first encounter Ryan was awarded the decision at the end of six rounds of hard battling, while the second was won by Ryan on a foul in the fifth round. Neither fight was satisfactory to Mellody, and he is confident he will more than square up matters tonight.

Two other bouts are on the card scheduled for six rounds. The semi-windup is between Otto Sieloff and Dick Green. The other is between Eddie Kenny and Jack Turner at 130 pounds.

Harry Gilmore, the veteran boxing instructor, has opened his new gymnasium at 35 Adams street and announces he intends to confine his instructions to those seeking lessons for exercise, barring the professional element.

HORSES SCARCE ON THE COAST.

Less Than One Thousand Will Supply the Fields at San Francisco.

SAME CLASS AS LAST YEAR

Two New Orleans Tracks Are Expected to Come to Terms Shortly.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The winter season of 1904 and 1905 can be said to have opened most auspiciously on Saturday. Everything proved to be up to expectation, except that there were a half dozen fewer bookmakers than was figured upon. Ten more bookmakers are expected inside of a fortnight.

There are 650 horses at the Oakland track and 150 coming 2 year olds are stabled on the outside. Not more than three carloads are coming from the east, so less than 1,000 horses will figure at the meetings around San Francisco. The class of horses is much the same as last year.

There is a conflict at present in regard to supplying out of town poolrooms with results. The Postal Telegraph company has a private wire at the track on Saturday, but the employés of the Western Union sent out service from outside the track.

Wally Brinkworth won a snug sum over the victory of Silverskin on Saturday, but his inability to send a dispatch from the track cost him $2,000.

EXPECT PEACE AT NEW ORLEANS

Belief That Two Tracks Will Get Together and Effect a Compromise Regarding Racing Dates.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Jottings from the busy scenes at the fair grounds these mornings, with 600 horses now there and 400 or 500 more to arrive within the next two weeks, the coming winter racing season will be livened. Unquestionably it has worked to the disadvantage of winter prospects that the rival associations did not get together and agree on dates a month or six weeks ago. In view of a natural doubt as to dates, many horsemen have shipped to other points, whereas if the dates matter had been settled they would have flocked in here, filling the 600 and odd stalls at the new track. These stalls are completed and ready.

It is felt that the tracks are certain to get together shortly, and decide upon a division of days for the balance of the winter after the 1st of January. The announcement by the new club of a list of valuable stakes, headed by the $10,000 Panama handicap, has not only been favorably received by the horsemen, but has had the beneficial effect of inducing the older organization to increase the added money to the Crescent City Derby.

Besides the Panama handicap, six other stakes are announced by the New Orleans Jockey club with added money ranging in value from $1,500 to $2,000 each. The date of the closing of these events has been set forward from Nov. 15 to Nov. 26, and entries will be accepted with the understanding that they will be run under the rules of the Western Jockey club. Otherwise entries are void and horsemen are relieved from all expense in entering.

Wouldn't That Freeze You?

William Murray, who has been starring on the western tracks, is in town, and says he has had a most successful campaign.—New York Sun.

NOTICE!

FORTUNATELY Our store was not in any way affected by the disastrous fire which completely demolished the Browning, King & Co.'s building. Our seven spacious floors are filled with the finest selection of Furniture, Carpets, Rugs and Draperies, not a single article was affected either by FIRE, SMOKE OR WATER.

All the goods in our store are samples of what we had in our warehouse where they were stored in quantities. It was from this stock that we filled our orders and made our deliveries.

UNFORTUNATELY our warehouse, which occupied the upper portion of the Browning-King & Co.'s building, was completely destroyed by fire—not a vestige of our immense stock of furniture, carpets, rugs, beds and bedding remained, and we find ourselves in the predicament of having seven large floors in our store building filled with samples and no stock to sell from.

There is only one thing left for us to do—that is to dispose of these samples and order a complete new stock of goods. In accordance we have telegraphed the factories for new furniture, to be shipped at once. These goods will arrive in a few days, and we will have to dispose of every sample of FURNITURE, CARPETS, RUGS, BEDS AND BEDDING in our store in a hurry. They are of no use to us now. IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

MISS BERNICE JONES TO BE INTRODUCED TODAY.

Large Reception at the Residence in Kenwood from 4 to 6 This Afternoon—Harvard Undergraduates' Dance to Take Place at Bournique's on Dec. 28—Arrangements for Wedding of Miss Flossie Moisant to Mr. George Griffiths.

Mrs. William Jones and Miss Bernice Jones, 634 Greenwood avenue, will hold a large reception tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. The affair will serve to present Miss Jones to society. The hostess will be assisted by Mrs. James B. Lord, Mrs. C. J. Hambleton, Mrs. John B. Farwell, Mrs. Alson E. Clark, Mrs. Rex L. Jones, Miss Jones, and Miss Senall, the last of New York. The young women who will preside in the dining room will be Miss Rosalie Hanson, Miss Margaret Kendrick, Miss Rebecca Steele, Miss Clarice Tyler, Miss Gertrude Turner, Miss Edna Dixon, Miss Annie Jerrems, and Miss Rosella Willard. Mrs. and Miss Jones will receive on the first and third Tuesdays in December.

Mrs. George W. Dixon, 2706 Michigan avenue, will entertain at luncheon today in honor of Mrs. Colton and Mrs. Blanchard.

The Harvard undergraduate dance, which each year is one of the prettiest entertainments given for the young set, will take place this year at Bournique's on Dec. 28.

The sixth annual bazaar of the Friendly Aid society will be held at the parish house of the Swedenborgian church, Forty-sixth street and Woodlawn avenue, on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 7 and 8.

Mrs. Clara W. Parker and Miss Williams, 39 Park avenue, entertained at a novelty shower on Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Fitzgerald, whose wedding to Mr. Edward Alexander Boyd will take place Wednesday evening. Mr. C. Francis Stieber will give a dinner this evening for the bridal party.

Mrs. G. A. Sanderson, 2621 Michigan avenue, gave a large reception Saturday afternoon. Receiving with her was her guest, Miss Winston.

At the wedding of Miss Flossie Moisant to Dr. George A. Griffiths of Chicago, which will take place at the home of the bride's mother in Kankakee Thursday evening, the bride will be attended by Mrs. Zachary Davis and Miss Jane Griffiths, both of Chicago, as matron and maid of honor, while Miss Edith La Parie, Miss Mabel Jones, Miss Gladys Cobb, and Miss Wilhelmina Osborne, all of Kankakee, will be the maids. Mr. Justin McCarthy of Chicago will act as best man, and the ushers, all Chicago men, will be Mr. Joseph S. Wilson, Mr. John H. Quinlan, Mr. Charles H. Van Sicklen, Mr. Frank K. Griffiths, and Mr. Will J. Davis Jr. The prospective bride and groom have been much entertained for the last week in Chicago, and this evening the ushers will give a theater party and a supper.

The marriage of Miss Gussie Imogene Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Brown of Milwaukee, to Mr. A. W. Holmes, took place last Monday noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Gilbert, 4207 Drexel boulevard. After a wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will reside at the Hotel Aberdeen, Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Rusco celebrated their fifty-ninth wedding anniversary last Wednesday at the home of their son, Mr. Charles A. Rusco, 311 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park. It was also Mr. Rusco's eighty-fourth birthday, and in honor of both events there was a family reunion. Mr. Rusco came to Chicago in 1836.

Announcement is made of the marriage in New York last week of Miss Emma Wagner Taylor, daughter of the late James D. Taylor and granddaughter of the late Webster Wagner, to Mr. Travers Denton Carman, son of the late Elbert S. Carman. The wedding took place in the Collegiate church on Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street, the Rev. Donald Sage Mackey officiating. After a brief wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Carman will occupy their new home at Park Hill, Yonkers, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Trout, 606 Forest avenue, Oak Park, have gone east for a stay of several weeks.

Mrs. J. Kerr Fisher has arrived from Europe and is visiting the Misses Forsyth, 1915 Michigan avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walter Brown, 167 Pemberton avenue, will be at home after Nov. 15. Mrs. Brown was formerly Miss Mary Nelson Matson, daughter of ex-Congressman C. C. Matson of Indiana, and her marriage to Mr. Brown took place on Sept. 14.

Miss Kathleen Scudder and Miss Ethel Hooper are visiting Mrs. James Cary Evans in Buffalo.

BIRDS TO HAVE A NEW HOME.

Lincoln Park Collection to Be Moved Next Sunday and Many New Ones to Be Added.

Magpies, cockatoos, and other birds in Lincoln park next Sunday will be moved from their crowded quarters in the old animal house to a new structure with new cages. Dr. De Vry left last night for New Orleans, where he will purchase many South American birds. When they arrive the new animal house will contain twenty-six varieties of parrots and many rare birds from all over the world.

"This is the finest bird house ever built," said Mr. De Vry. "The light and ventilation is perfect."

The new house is of brick and is just north of the old one and of the same size and shape. The cages are ranged along all four walls, while the largest is in the center, extending nearly the length of the building, with a broad walk around it, separating it from the smaller ones. Within it is a large fountain and trees.

Household Hints.

BY ADA M. KRECKER.

TETE-A-TETES WITH EXPERTS.

How They Treat Their Servants.

Mrs. Alec Tweedie, the London author, was telling us the other day how her grandfather pensioned off his servants after thirty years' service and how he had seven such pensioners. Seven and eleven year servants she has had in her own house.

A Well Known Hostess Says—

"We cannot expect perfection in our domestic service, but it is possible by painstaking and patient teaching to create a respectable and helpful serving class. Servants are apt to take their tone from their employers—to be civil if they are civil, and insolent if they are insolent. The head of a house is apt to be copied by his flunkies. One primal law we must mention—a hostess should never reprove her servants in the presence of her guests, it is cruel both to guest and servant, and always shows the hostess in an unamiable light. Whatever may go wrong, the lady of the house should remain calm; if she is anguished who can remain happy?

"The mistress must carefully define the work of each, or else hire them with the understanding that neither shall ever say: 'This is not my work.' It is sometimes quite impossible to define what is the exact duty of each servant.

"The one thing which every lady must firmly demand from her servants is respect. The harassed and troubled American woman who has to cope with the worst servants in the world—the ill trained, incapable, and vicious peasantry of Europe, who come here to be 'as good as anybody,' and who see that it is easily possible to make a living in America whether they are respectful or not—that woman has a hard task to perform. The mistress must not lose her temper. She must be calm, imperturbable, and dignified always. If she give an order she must insist at whatever personal cost that it shall be obeyed. Pertinacity and inflexibility on this point are well bestowed.

"Conscientious servants, who comprehend their duties and who try to perform them, should, after a certain course of discipline, be allowed to follow their own methods of working. Interference and fault finding injures the temper of an inferior, while suspicion is bad for anybody, and especially operates against the making of a good servant.

"To assure your servants that you believe them to be honest is to fix in them the habit of honesty. To respect their rights, their hours of recreation, their religion, their feelings, to wish them good night and good morning in the pretty German fashion, to assist them in the writing of letters, and in the proper investment of their earnings, to teach them to read and write, and to make their clothes so that they may be useful to themselves when they leave servitude—all this is the pleasurable duty of a good mistress, and such a course makes good servants."

A College Girl Says—

The college girl became a domestic servant for a time for observations and she says:

"A few more evolutionary stages, a nearer approach to the old apostolic spirit of universal love, the coming of really consecrated leaders, and the passing of bosses may solve our social difficulties, domestic and other. Meantime the individual employer must struggle with his own difficulties. As a housekeeper coping with present conditions there would be found in my constitution several unalterable rules:

"1. Never under any consideration will I engage an applicant whose face and bearing do not in my judgment declare her worthy. My need for 'somebody' shall not entrap me into taking 'anybody.'

"2. Shall I ever fail to remember that the employé is as worthy consideration and fairness as her employer ought to be? I trust I shall remember, the days of slavery being passed, that my girl, cook, or other maid is not my property, and that she is entirely free to leave my employ for that of any other housekeeper who shall make it worth her while as free as the wind that blows. Nor shall I blackguard the more fortunate woman who can offer superior attractions. Just why the salaries of all cooks should be uniform any more than the salaries of all private secretaries should be uniform, or just why a domestic employé alone of all workers should not be open to business propositions from other houses while still in employ, it is beyond human ingenuity to discover. Finite mind can find no just or rational support for the present strong social sentiment to the contrary.

"3. Keeping house with a hired helper is the conduct of important business. All understandings and plans should be on a business basis from the start. The cooperative and profit sharing scheme proposed by Prof. Lucy M. Solman and tried so satisfactorily by many housekeepers commends itself. Briefly it involves a system of accounts, a periodical taking account of stock, and a sharing of the balance over the average allowance for provisions, breakage and wear in the different departments, saved by the economy and carefulness of the worker with her material. It means more work for the housekeeper of course, but the plan supplies a needed incentive and is something of a substitute for promotion in office. It is too much to expect of a good girl of average capacity to sacrifice her few chances of material betterment upon the altar of personal devotion. I shall also, so far as the conditions allow, experiment with non-resident labor.

"4. I do take kindly to the idea of educating any possible employés from the kindergarten up, though I should expect to teach them my peculiar preferences with patience and firmness.

"5. I like a uniform for indoor wear on the ground of neatness and convenience. I do not like a livery. Personal serving is demoralizing, save upon old age, illness, and infancy. There should be no such demand in my house. When I cook messes in the kitchen I shall do so only on the cook's afternoon out, and the chambermaid will come down only in time to serve the dinner. In general, having satisfied myself of the general character and orderliness of the worker in her workroom, I shall keep out of the kitchen.

"6. And finally when I begin to have the fidgets and much anxiety over my employés; when I perceive in myself an inclination to fret and nag or explode it shall be a clear sign that I need to retire from business."

What an Authority—

In Cookery and Housekeeping says:

"Don't engage a servant without having a clear understanding as to what he or she is expected to do.

"Don't give an order and then forget it and contradict yourself.

"Don't send orders to one servant through another if you can avoid it.

"Don't discuss servants in general or those of any particular nationality while you are being waited on at table.

"Don't promise a holiday or any pleasure and then take it back.

"Don't spy upon your servants; take pains to be sure they are honest and then treat them rationally.

"Don't expose them to temptation by leaving money carelessly about as if it had no value for you.

"Don't go into your servants' rooms unless you have reason to think they are not clean. They have a right to some privacy.

"Don't blame servants for every fault or mistake and then leave good service unthanked. They would rather, being human, be scolded and praised than have uniform excellence taken for granted.

"Don't expect in your servants a perfection which would be impossible in any human being.

"Don't talk of one servant in the hearing of another. Don't discuss one servant with another.

"Don't rely on information given you by one servant of the other without first investigating. Often ill feeling and jealousy prompt a false report.

"Don't fail to see that their beds are good and their rooms properly cared for.

"Don't expect servants to perform duties without proper utensils to work with. Have dust sheets, cloths, brooms, brushes, pails, chamois, dusters, etc., and require each servant to look after his or her own articles.

"Don't neglect to have inventory of china, glass, silver, and bric-à-brac of each servant coming and going. Without this it is difficult to keep track of various articles.

"Don't forget the old proverb, which has generations of human experience in it, 'Like mistress, like maid.'

"The best way to get polite and respectful service is to be respectful and polite and self-contained yourself."

HAPPY ONCE IN EIGHT YEARS.

Mrs. Sadie Smith, Who Regains Her Children, Says This Thanksgiving Will Be Joyful.

The family of Mrs. Sadie Smith, reunited, will eat Thanksgiving dinner. Roy, 15 years old, forsook his foster mother in Elgin, Mrs. C. J. Dumser, yesterday, and came to 545 West Van Buren street "for good," completing the circle. Like the other children, Harry, 17 years old, and Ethel, 12 years old, whose custody the mother was awarded after long litigation, he had been absent from home during the eight years since his mother separated from her first husband.

"This year I will have something to be thankful for on Thanksgiving," said the mother last night. "I've had a hard fight to get my children back. For the first time in eight years I'm actually happy."

Roy was given into his mother's care by Judge Kavanagh several months ago, but was allowed to remain temporarily in Elgin. The other two children were awarded Mrs. Smith later by Judge Dunne in spite of the opposition of Miss Nettie McMillan of Sparta.

Throw Horse Shoes for Prize.

"Champion horseshoe thrower of the Illinois Steel company mills" was the title won by John Hutton in a contest for $50 a side against Joseph Goebel yesterday at Eighty-sixth street and Green Bay avenue. Five hundred steel workers watched the throwing, and large amounts of money were wagered on the outcome.

GOOD GUESSING ON PRUNES.

Chicago Woman Estimates Within Three of the Number in a Bear at the World's Fair.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—In the guessing contest as to the number of prunes in the hide of the big prune bear at the Sacramento valley exhibit at the world's fair Oliver Schwab of Moundsville, W. Va., guessed exactly the number, and Maude Redmond of 1261 Madison street, Chicago, Ill., and F. W. Castle of St. Louis, Mo., guessed within three of the number.

Mr. Schwab's guess was 14,265. Mr. Castle guessed 14,262, and Miss Redmond 14,268.

The first prize is a box of early Sacramento valley sweet oranges. Two boxes of Sacramento valley prunes will be awarded to the two who were tied for second place.

"Sore-Formalin" (Elmer & Amend), antiseptic dressing, for burns, sores, cuts, bruises, or any similar accident or affliction.

THE DESIGNER

"A Magazine of Real Use to Woman"

Christmas Number—Out To-day 10c.

I think the best Christmas present that a dollar will buy for the Woman in the Home is a year's subscription to The Designer. It isn't that The Designer is the only magazine that this sum will purchase but there is a cozy, homelike, and attractively practical atmosphere about The Designer which I do not think is to be found in any other publication in this country.

The next twelve numbers will be far the best in the portrayal of fashions that we have ever issued; best in its departmental treatment; best in its artistic features. You can get a fair idea of what next year's Designer will be from the Christmas number which your newsdealer puts on sale to-day.

The winter fashions are temptingly shown and are appropriately augmented by several pages of charming party costumes for ladies, misses and little girls. Pages of things to give at Christmas and how to make them. Bright Christmas stories; a holiday play for amateur production, and an illustrated article on "Making Up for Private Theatricals" besides the first paper of a notable series "In the Interest of Beauty" under the title of "The Lady and the Lunch" which takes up a subject too often treated with carelessness. The departments edited by our readers are of more than usual interest.

LETTER TO JUDGE GROSSCUP TELLS OF CROWDED CARS.

George E. Hooker Writes Complaining of Deficient Service in Halsted Street and Gives Figures.

In an open letter sent yesterday to Judge Grosscup protesting against the conditions of travel on the South Halsted street electric line, George E. Hooker takes the judge to task on the ground that he pays more attention to the quarrels of the Union Traction company and its underlying companies and their contentions with the city than to the actual condition of service.

Mr. Hooker concludes that the company which compels the overcrowding of its cars, as in South Halsted street, is guilty of extortion and adds:

"Furthermore, can it be expected that the judicial guardianship of such public utilities will command popular confidence when that guardianship seems to be solely engrossed with the quarrels and contentions—between themselves and against the city—of the private owners and exploiters of those utilities, while the rights of the passengers go by the board? I find that since the west and north side car lines passed under the conduct of your court, something like 200 documents, involving perhaps 5,000 pages of printed matter, have been considered by you in respect to such private rights, while so far as I have been able to learn, not a single report has ever been ordered or made, or a single page printed, showing the actual conditions of the daily service rendered to passengers."

Mr. Hooker says that the company has withdrawn even the extra cars run in the summer. On Friday, Oct. 28, he observed the operation of the line for ten hours. He found that during the morning rush hour 77 per cent and during the corresponding evening hour 82 per cent of the cars were in different stages of congestion, most being in the extreme stage. Outside of these rush hours nearly one-half of the cars, he declares, are unduly crowded.

CALLED "UNKNOWN WOMAN."

Person Who Wanders from Dunning and Is Found in Marsh Has No Name on Books.

"Unknown woman" is the only title given at the institution to the person who wandered from the Dunning poorhouse and was found in a marsh near Glencoe after three days without food or drink.

The woman is 70 years old and deaf and dumb. She has been many years in the county institution.

Dr. C. E. Swan, in charge of the poorhouse infirmary, declared yesterday the woman was not watched and her escape was not difficult.

ANTHONY'S IDEA OF RELIGION MADE IN DYING STATEMENT.

Kansas Editor Believed in Divine Power and That a Devil Exists Only in the Heart of Man.

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The death of Col. D. R. Anthony has awakened a keen interest in his religious beliefs. The following article written by his son published in the Times this morning sets forth his final religious convictions:

"One night last week during one of his few conscious moments he called one of the members of his family to his bedside and dictated the following statement relative to his religious ideas:

"I die in full confidence of a divine power, who made and controls the universe—that there have been no changes of control so far as we know.

"Whatever was made by that divine power is perfect and remains perfect.

"So far as the other world is concerned we do not know. Divine is for good and not for evil. We believe that we should do unto others as we would be done by.

"I don't believe God ever created a devil. I don't believe that devil exists anywhere except in the heart of man or beast.

"Col. Anthony never professed any religion, but always exhibited a deep interest in any discussion of biblical matters. The teachings of Buddha appealed to him strongly, and he many times during life had expressed admiration for the wonderful power and great influence for good of the Roman Catholic church."

LEW WALLACE IN GOOD HEALTH.

Denies Reports That He Is in Critical Condition—Spends Little Time on Autobiography.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Gen. Lew Wallace is much annoyed by the reports that he is critically ill. Telegrams of inquiry have been pouring in at his home for the last two days, and to all of them he replies that he is in better health now than for two months. He drives out to his farm, four miles in the country, every day and superintends the construction of some additional fishponds. He is a great admirer of football, and two weeks ago was a spectator of the Wabash-Indiana game. He is not spending much time these days on his autobiography and is not taking much interest in it. As it is not over half completed, there is doubt if he ever finishes it. He is just now in the midst of his civil war experiences.

Boy Excursionist to Fair Missing.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Hugh O'Neal of Bloomington, one of the Chicago and Alton shop excursionists to the St. Louis fair, is missing. He was last seen near the Merchants' bridge, St. Louis.

PATIENT TAKEN TO CALIFORNIA.

Mrs. W. H. Bartlett, Ill with Pneumonia, Leaves Evanston in a Private Car.

After being kept alive for over a week on oxygen, Mrs. W. H. Bartlett of Evanston, the wife of W. H. Bartlett of the board of trade, had sufficiently recovered yesterday from an attack of pneumonia to be taken to California. It was the opinion of Dr. E. H. Webster and Dr. L. C. Bonney of Denver, both of whom have been in attendance, that a less variable climate than Evanston's was necessary for the recovery of the patient and a special car was chartered to take her from the suburb to Los Angeles.

MONEY IS IN ABUNDANCE.

BANKS STILL SEEKING INVESTMENTS FOR IDLE FUNDS.

West and Northwest Receiving More Money than They Are Sending Out—New York Banks Get No Relief in the Stock Market—General Business Conditions Good—Shipments to the West Increasing and Growing Activity Is Noted.

The banks still are looking for desirable investments to employ their idle funds. These latter continue to grow even in the northwest and the west, where unusual demands for crop moving purposes might be expected. The country seems to be provided with an exceptional volume of money, and the New York stock market has not as yet come to the relief of the banking business by making the usual demands for carrying securities. Indeed, it begins to appear that the money market is to experience an unusual condition. At the beginning of what it is generally thought will be an era of active business and corresponding expansion of credit, there is not even the symptom of a change in money affairs.

After all the New York stock market has apparently a preponderating influence in making the rates for money. In the last twelve months the exchange has done nothing in the way of enlarged demands compared with the increase in loanable funds. For instance, loans and deposits yesterday and one year ago compare as follows:

	Deposits.	Loans.
Nov. 12, 1904	$1,176,045,000	$1,125,080,900
Nov. 14 1903	853,415,100	889,825,000
Increase	$ 322,629,900	$ 235,234,900
Per cent.	37.8	26.4

Excess increase deposits over loans.....$87,395,000

In addition to the increase in deposits the capital and surplus of the same banks has increased over $5,000,000.

Excess of Deposits Over Loans.

Loans in the bank statement yesterday were in round figures $1,250,000,000, against deposits of $1,176,000,000. Here is an excess of $51,000,000 of deposits over loans. Two years ago deposits stood at $878,000,000, while loans were $870,000,000, an excess in deposits of $8,000,000.

One of the striking features of the money situation as reflected by the New York banks is the fact that 12 stocks listed on the New York exchange have in a little over one year increased $1,488,578,000 in market value. In the meantime, throughout all this advance the loan account has increased but $235,234,900. The present rise in stocks may be said to have fairly begun last June. The items of loans and deposits for that date, compared with yesterday, show the following changes:

	Deposits.	Loans.
Nov. 12, 1904	$1,176,045,000	$1,125,080,900
June 3, 1904	1,098,795,900	1,036,556,200
Increase	$ 77,249,100	$ 88,524,700

Outlook Is Easy.

With the banks of the west seeking investments and the New York stock market having made so little demand for funds in the course of such a rise, one of two things must happen before the money market can expect to materially harden. There must be a greatly improved demand from business interests or there must follow a demand in order to carry stocks for the so-called public should it get into the market. It is when the avalanche of those with limited means begins to buy securities that the loan market is furnished a basis for disturbance and high rates. If the New York banks were able to loan out $100,000,000 or more to margin securities there would be afforded opportunity for quick calls and high rates.

Stock Market Healthy.

The course of prices on the New York stock exchange after the election was a demonstration of confidence in the general situation. It is believed that much higher quotations may be expected, with a continuance of good earnings by the West corporations and the railroads. It will be observed that cheap stocks with no particular merit will be advanced along with those having extended dividend records. But as yet there is lacking the element of danger in the market which and over extended public always creates. Until such time as the market is full of little traders and stop loss orders the market may be considered to be in a healthy condition.

Local Bank Shares Firm.

The local bank stock market shows a tendency to considerable firmness. There are more buyers than sellers and some issues are exceptionally firm. The First National, which dragged for a long time, has gained about 13 points in the last month. American Trust and Savings and Continental National have also done well. The stock of the National Bank of North America holds around 130.

Election Helps General Trade.

The passing of the election as a restraining influence, although practically no nervousness has been felt over the final result, brought about further gains in activity in the wholesale markets. In a general way shipments of all kinds of merchandise to the west were heavy last week, and wholesalers all report a good deal of reordering. Clothing, furniture, and groceries were active, and sales of lumber and building materials were good.

Perhaps the greatest improvement was noted in the metal market. The activity in steel products extended into all branches of the market. Large sales of plates were recorded, the material to be used in building lake vessels. Steel bars were in excellent demand, and one eastern producer advanced prices $2 per ton. Some record breaking sales of structural materials were made, partly due to a report that an advance was likely. Old material was higher, about the only material change in prices during the week. Pig iron was fairly active, but the market was unsettled. Southern makers generally moved prices up to $13.00 Birmingham.

Treasury Finds No Immediate Need of Calling on Government Depositories, but May in January.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—In view of the published statement that Secretary of the Treasury Shaw would make a call on government depositories for a loan of $20,000,000, it can be positively stated tonight that no such call in the immediate future is contemplated. There is at the present time, it was said, no pressing need for such a call. Should it be made at all the probabilities are that it will be some time during January.

New Church Dedicated.

The Roman Catholic Church of St. John the Baptist, Fiftieth place and Peoria street, was dedicated yesterday, Archbishop Quigley officiating. BULLS ACTIVE IN WHRAT.

SCARCITY OF CONTRACT STOCKS IS THE FACTOR.

Some Improvement in Milling and Flour Demand and Some Uncertainty Concerning Argentine Crop Situation Encourage Advancing Tendency—Depletion of Old Corn at High Prices Alarms December Shorts, Who Cover on a 4 Cent Bulge.

The erratic pendulum which marks the fluctuations of values in the wheat market has been swinging toward a higher price level the last week, making a gain of 3c for May from the closing point of the previous week and holding most of the advance. Scarcity of choice milling wheat, and therefore of wheat which will grade contract and be deliverable on sales of futures, has been again the main factor in making the price.

Speculators rather than millers have shown the most interest or concern over the scarcity of wheats of this sort in the country. Except for occasional spurts in the demand for the actual grain, cash markets have generally been slow, and the flour demand also has been dragging, local millers asserting there was little inquiry and that shipping directions on old sales were coming in slowly. Some of the big southeastern mills shut down on account of the poor demand. The Minneapolis output for the week ending on Tuesday was 100,000 brls less than that of a year ago and the demand for the week called poor. However, there have been signs of improvement since, some mills reporting good sales, and Minneapolis millers have been good buyers of winter wheat in Kansas City.

But the temporary lull in the milling and flour demand has not had much effect on the speculator, who looks ahead to future conditions and is confident the admitted scarcity of wheat of good quality is going to make for much higher prices later in the year. The scarcity of contract stocks, less than 1,500,000 bu in Chicago, makes short sellers timid. Most of the hedging sales are against low grade wheats and the hedging shorts run about as quickly as the speculative shorts.

Bull Theory.

The wheat bulls frequently remind each other of the fact the contract wheat stocks of the entire country are so small some big operator might easily corner the entire quantity. There is a widespread belief, particularly whenever the market shows strength, that some one is going to do it, and a general desire to have some long wheat before the market starts up. Whether or not the market has started up permanently remains to be seen. Speculative trade on the whole has been dull, a general public interest lacking. A market falling off in primary receipts compared with last year—the total for the week 6,780,000 bu, compared with 9,147,000 bu a year ago—has been an important factor in the advance. There are persistent advices, both from the southwest and the northwest, of a falling off in the country deliveries of winter and spring wheat, which will still further reduce primary marketings.

Stocks at visible supply points, while still increasing, are now gaining more slowly than last year. There has been some wet weather in Argentina and some claims of crop damage, but they have not been confirmed, and foreign markets are still lagging behind. Light scattered showers in the winter wheat belt have to some extent relieved the fears of injury to the growing crop in this country from drought.

Spurt in December Corn.

Speculation in corn has been on a more important scale at times than that in wheat. December shorts have been jarred out of the feeling of security given by confidence in a big crop and in an early movement by the rapid disappearance of the small stocks of old corn here under an urgent cash demand at high prices and the discouraging failure of the new crop to move freely so far. With all of the contract corn in store sold at premiums of 7c to 11c over May, and the last 100,000 bu held by the hopeful owners at 13c premium, December shorts concluded their position was untenable and covered freely, forcing an advance of 4c in two days. On this sharp bulge Armour and other elevator interests who had taken the large sales of December corn, made the week before by the eastern longs accepted their profits and the advance was checked.

A strong demand developed in the meantime for the May, which advanced 1½c to 47¼c, in spite of a good deal of opposition from the bears, who are more confident of results in this delivery. The government crop report for November made the total yield 2,453,000,000 bu, the largest crop but one in the country's history, and of the best quality in years. As two good sized crops have been completely used up, with only a moderate export demand, at an average level of values nearly as high as the present May price, and as there are indications of a larger export demand this year because of some shortage of fodder crops abroad, there is a strong bull sentiment and a good deal of accumulation of May corn on the theory the farmer will not sell at the present level of values and prices must advance.

Farmers Not Selling.

One reason the farmer is not selling and country sales on the basis of the May price are certainly light is the fact cash prices in the local market are several cents above the May and farmers probably will consign the early movement of corn as long as the cash premiums are maintained. There are claims there will be a free movement within a week or two. The high quality of the crop is advanced as an argument in favor of high prices and it may work out that way, but speculators who were bulling oats at 35c for May because of the fine quality of the crop are a little suspicious of the argument with May oats now selling several cents cheaper. The east is free of stocks and there certainly will be a sharp cash demand for the early movement of the new crop.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The week in dry goods closes with comparatively little activity at first hands, though firmness characterizes all the operations which are being conducted. General interest in the opening of the Fall River mills on Monday is evident.

Metals—Iron in particular was strong and the general demand of good volume. Prices were nominally unchanged. The recent heavy buying of copper by Europe encourages holders to look for further advances and prices are firm, with lake $14.00@14.87½, electrolytic $14.00@14.25, and casting at $13.75@14.12½. Tin was quiet; spot $28.87½@29.10. Lead and spelter firm, the former at $4.20@4.50 and spelter at $5.40@5.50.

Butter — Firm. Receipts, 3,439 pkgs. Official prices: Renovated, common to extra, 18@18¼c; western factory, common to choice, 13@18½c; western imitation creamery, common to choice, 15¼@19c. Philadelphia—Firm; good demand; Extra western creamery, 25½c; extra nearby prints, 26c.

Eggs—Firm. Receipts, 2,984 cases. State, Pennsylvania, and nearby fancy selected white extra, 35@38c; do choice, 30@33c; mixed fancy, 30c; western fancy selected, 28c; do firsts, 27c; southerns, 19@27c. Philadelphia—Steady; fair demand. Nearby firsts and western firsts, 25@26c at mark.

Poultry—Alive and dressed, quiet, unchanged.

Indianapolis Agency Transferred.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The National Union of Pittsburg has transferred its Indianapolis agency from Rehm & Co. to the Central Trust company.

MILLIONS ARE AT STAKE BEFORE COMMERCE BOARD.

Interstate Commission Meets in Chicago to Hear Testimony Regarding Alleged Excessive Rates on Cattle.

Millions of dollars in freight rates annually are said to be involved in the outcome of a hearing to be resumed this morning in Chicago by the interstate commerce commission. Every railroad running into the city from the west is defendant. The lines are charged with violating the interstate commerce law by charging excessive rates on cattle shipments amounting from $5 to $20 on each car.

Most of the evidence in behalf of the complainants has been heard by the commission. The taking of evidence submitted by the defendants will probably consume the entire week.

It was announced officially last night by the commission that it would not take up either the question of "industrial railways" or of private car lines during the present session. It was admitted, however, that the industrial railway question would be taken up soon.

Action by the commission with a view to remedying the unequal division of freight rates said to be extorted from railroad companies by the International Harvester company, Illinois Steel company, and other corporations operating the so-called industrial lines is likely to take any of the following lines:

Recommendation to start criminal proceedings against corporations and railroad companies for violation of anti-trust act.

"None of these measures may be necessary if the railroads get together, as seems likely, and agree to abolish the unequal divisions with the industrial companies," said C. A. Prouty last night at the Palmer house.

A Loud Call for Help.

Answer It.

9,305 lines of paid Help Wanted advertisements were published in The Tribune last week, 1,335 more than appeared in all other Chicago daily and Sunday newspapers combined, and each ad represented a genuine want. The same call was sounded yesterday and today—Answer It.

207,499 Answers

to Want Advertisements were received and distributed at The Tribune Office in October—100 per cent more returns than any other newspaper in the world has ever claimed to bring Want Advertisers.

CLAIRVOYANTS.

AN HONEST PROPOSITION—PROF. JAMES White, Chicago's celebrated clairvoyant, palmist, and spirit medium, is permanently located at 63 E. His honesty, test of time, and 12 years of continuous practice in Chicago have proved beyond all doubt that Prof. James White is the leader of his profession. As proof of his WONDERFUL POWER to all who come prepared for readings this week he will tell your FULL NAME, ADDRESS, OCCUPATION, AND THE OBJECT OF YOUR VISIT ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE. His advice pertaining to love, marriage, business, lawsuits, buying or selling property, speculation, investments, marriages, divorces, etc., is unequaled. He reunites the separated, causes speedy and happy marriage with the one you love, restores lost affection, removes evil influences—in fact, everything. Prof. White's advice is much sought for on love and future investments, for which he has no equal. He charges not one penny for such advice until the investment has paid a handsome profit. Is this not fair and honest? Great reduction this week. Prof. White, as a matter of advertisement, this week will give his full life history, reading for 50 cents; satisfaction absolutely guaranteed or no fee accepted. Everything strictly sacred and confidential. His residence is a paradise as you meet no strangers. Don't mistake name and number. PROF. JAMES WHITE, TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-THREE WARREN-AV. bet. Only 35 Buying Days Until Christmas—and the last 20 of these days will find the store inevitably crowded—leaving about 15 days for that leisurely selection which is so much desired by discriminating purchasers. A great many people are already taking advantage of this opportunity, and Christmas buying is well begun. The present condition of our stocks affords a wide selection of gift articles suitable for the holidays.

Our Great Apparel Sections Are Now at Their Best, and the Values Here Offered Warrant Immediate Investigation.

Clearance Sale of Dress Nets at Half Prices.

These extraordinary reductions have been made to close out at once a large number of odd lots. In no instance is the original cost to the maker realized in this sale. They are in cream, blacks and combinations of black and white, in widths from 22 to 45 inches—yard, 48c, 95c and $1.50. Second Floor South Room.

Women's Kid Gloves—Rare Holiday Values.

An extraordinary effort to place these great assortments of Kid Gloves in a better condition than they have ever been before at this season has resulted in the largest lines, the best styles and the best values to be had in Chicago at the following prices—all the most popular colors and shades—pair, $1.00, $1.15, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00. First Floor South Room.

The styles that immediately appeal to every one as decidedly unusual, yet extremely effective in their every outline and in the trimmings, are shown in unequaled profusion in these displays of afternoon and evening costumes. Fourth Floor North Room.

Crepe de Chine Costumes in dark colors as well as the desirable new shades for afternoon and evening wear; trimmed with lace insertion to match material; all silk lined; undoubtedly one of the best values we have ever offered at $37.50.

Chiffon Cloth Costumes in the new evening shades, made with separate net guimpes; waist shirred very full and with short puff sleeves; skirt shirred around hip and knee—all silk lined, $47.50.

Sharp price reductions have been made to close out many of the elaborate conceptions shown in our previous displays—some marked at almost half former prices.

Stationery and Desk Accessories.

The beginning of the holiday season finds this section admirably supplied to care for the heavy demand that is always made on its lines by gift buyers. First Floor Annex.

Over 100 styles are shown in Box Papers from all the leading makers of fine stationery—prices ranging from 50c to $5.00.

Blankets Specially Priced, pair, $6.25.

The fact that these blankets are slightly imperfect made it possible for us to purchase them at a heavy reduction—they have been placed on sale at proportionately low prices.

They are of a very fine quality of white wool mixed with just sufficient cotton to make them launder well; weight 6 lbs.; the sizes vary from 72x84 in. to 80x86 in.
